FROM GOVERNMENT GAZETTE of 4th April, 1882.

Department of Mines, Sydney, 31st March, 1882.
His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, has been pleased to make the following regulations relating to Gold-mining Leases, in pursuance of the powers conferred by the Mining Act of 1874.
ARTHUR RENWICK, Minister for Mines.

Regulations relating to Gold-mining Leases of new or unworked Crown land, to be read in connection with, and construed as forming part of, the Regulations relating to Gold-mining Leases published in the Government Gazette under date 13th July, 1874.

1. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the regulations last mentioned, any parcel of new or unworked Crown land taken possession of under such regulations, but subsequent to the date hereof, with a view to obtain a lease of the same, shall be efficiently and continuously worked from the date of taking possession until the application shall be granted or refused.

2. Efficient work shall mean the employment during the ordinary hours of labour on each day (Sundays and public holidays excepted) of not less than two men upon a parcel of land containing four acres or less, and one additional man in respect of every two acres in excess of the said four acres contained in any parcel of land.

3. Upon the complaint of any person that the requisite labour is not being employed upon any parcel of new or unworked land taken possession of subsequent to the date hereof and held under the Regulations aforesaid, the Warden may inquire into the matter of complaint, and may take such evidence thereon as shall be tendered by the person complaining, or by the person or persons claiming possession of the land, and if the complaint be established to his satisfaction, the Warden may adjudge the title of such person or persons to the possession of such parcel of land forfeited, and if no application to lease such parcel of land shall have been lodged by such person or persons, his or their title to the land shall thereupon absolutely cease and determine, but if an application to lease the land had been made prior to such adjudication, the Secretary for Mines may recommend that the application of such person or persons to lease the said parcel of land be refused.

4. In the event of any dispute touching the right to possession of any parcel of land arising, or if for any other reason it shall appear to the Warden that any wrong may be done by permitting work to be done upon any parcel of land of which possession shall have been taken as aforesaid, the Warden may direct work to be suspended upon such parcel of land until the rights of the parties shall have been ascertained, and every such order by the Warden shall, during its continuance, relieve the persons named therein from the obligation to work and from the consequences of non-work.

5. These Regulations shall not apply to or be deemed to affect land which shall have been actually worked and abandoned prior to possession being taken as aforesaid; but for the purposes of these Regulations all land within a newly-discovered goldfield, and all newly-discovered quartz lodes or veins, or other deposits, shall, for a period of two years from the date of discovery, be deemed new or unworked ground.

The Treasury, New South Wales, 24th April, 1882.

LAW REPORT.

INSOLVENCY COURT.—MONDAY, APRIL 24.

SURRENDER.

George Vescys, trading as Robert Vescys, of Raglan-street, Waterloo, commission agent. Liabilities, £550 10s. 1d.; assets, £229 19s. 3d. Mr. Lyons, official assignee.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.—MONDAY.

(Before Mr. District Court Judge JOSEPHSON.)

GRANT V. LANE.

Plaintiff claimed £42 2s. 6d. for goods sold and deliv d. After the case had been opened plaintiff consented to a verdict in her favour for £40. Mr. Clayton appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. J. Liddle for the defendant.

WILLSON V. TAYLOR.

This was an action brought by plaintiff, a contractor, to recover £30 for extra materials supplied in the erection of two houses at Canterbury. Plaintiff's case was that in October last he was employed by defendant to build two houses for him at Canterbury, for the sum of £661. At the time the agreement was entered into there were two houses (Levy's), adjoining defendant's land, on the right-hand side, and plaintiff was instructed to build the front of the houses on the same alignment. Plaintiff in the presence of defendant marked the place indicated, on the fence, with a piece of chalk; but owing to the delay of defendant in signing the agreement he took another job. Subsequently the agreement was signed, and plaintiff, upon going to the site of the intended building, found that two other houses (Hayes') had been erected on the left-hand side, the front walls of which were 10 or 11 feet further back from the pathway than the houses on the right. Defendant told him that he wished to have the front walls of his houses erected on the same alignment as Hayes', but plaintiff pointed out that, as the land dipped from the pathway to the extent of one foot in seven, the work would involve increased expense in the foundations, and for which he would expect to be paid extra. Defendant replied that he could not see what difference it would make, but, after some conversation, defendant promised that the extra work would be made up to him. The work was finished, and defendant paid the £661, but declined to pay anything for extras. In consequence of the alteration made by defendant, an additional 3 feet of foundation had to be built, and it was to recover the cost of this that plaintiff sued. Defendant pleaded that the work sued for was part of the contract and not extras, and swore that plaintiff never said anything to him about extra work until he paid him the £661. He at once declined to pay him any additional sum, as he had never agreed to do so. He, however, admitted that he saw plaintiff mark on the fence the place which indicated the distance from the pathway originally ordered for the erection of the walls. Plaintiff did not call his attention to the fact that the alteration would require extra material, nor did he tell him while the work was going on that he should require payment for extras. His Honor gave a verdict for the plaintiff for £20, with costs of two witnesses for two days. Mr. J. Teece, instructed by Mr. J. M. Dunn, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. J. M. Curtis, for the defendant.

HYAM V. BUTTELL.

Plaintiff brought this action to recover the sum of £128 19s. 3d., for goods sold and delivered. Plaintiff stated that some time in 1875 and up to 1879 he supplied hay and other produce to defendant through a man named John Boyle, defendant's servant. Owing to plaintiff having lost his books through being capsized in the harbour, while crossing to Balmain, he had to refer to the receipt books in the A. S. N. Co.'s office, where he obtained the receipts for the goods. John Boyle, on being placed in the box, swore that he received and signed for the goods indicated in the receipts, on behalf of the defendant. He had no direct authority from defendant to get the goods, but he received them for defendant, and delivered them to him or his clerk. Plaintiff's collector was also called, and swore that when he went to defendant about the account he promised to pay if the receipts could be shown to him. Subsequently defendant's clerk went with him to the A. S. N. Company's office and examined the receipts, with which he said he was perfectly satisfied. Defendant, however, refused to pay the account, hence the action. Defendant pleaded never indebted payment, and the Statute of Limitations, but the latter plea was abandoned. He admitted that Boyle had been in his service seven years, but that he did not authorise him to get the goods, for which he was sued, nor did he remember the goods being delivered. He did not receive an account from plaintiff until recently, and he was not aware that he owed him a shilling. He also denied that he promised defendant's collector that if he produced the receipts for the goods he would pay the account. When he received the account from Mr. Hyam he could not understand it, and sent for Boyle, who, upon being questioned, said he knew nothing about it. He told Boyle he had better go and see Mr. Hyam about it, and subsequently plaintiff's clerk had an interview with plaintiff and examined the receipts in the A. S. N. Company's office. The clerk also saw Hyam, and asked him why he had not sent in the account before, and Hyam told him that he could not, as he had lost his books and had to hunt up the receipts, which had taken a great deal of time and cost him some money. He also said that he would not have known anything about the account if it had not been for a former clerk of defendant's, who told him about it. After hearing counsel his Honor decided to nonsuit plaintiff, but advised the parties to settle. An arrangement was accordingly come to by which plaintiff agreed to accept a verdict for £45, each party to pay his own costs. Mr. Mackinlay appeared for plaintiff, and Mr. Bruce Smith, instructed by Mr. Roberts, jun., for defendant.

LLOYD V. JACOBS.

This was an action brought by L. T. Lloyd, official assignee in the estate of Thomas Robson, against defendant, a money lender, to recover the sum of £202 9s. 4d., for the conversion by the defendant to his own use certain groceries and furniture belonging to the insolvent estate. It appeared from Robson's evidence that on the 19th May, 1880, he negotiated a loan with the defendant to the amount of £100 upon the security of his stock and furniture. He received £75 out of the £100, and paid £60 in the manner agreed upon, and gave a cheque for £40, which was the balance. On several occasions after this the loan was renewed, and paid off on the same terms. The last payment upon the advance was made on the 29th January, 1882, and on the 31st of the same month Robson closed his shop in order to attend a meeting of his creditors, who (including defendant) had been summoned by him to attend. When he returned to his shop he found that the back door had been burst open, and a servant of defendant was in possession. Defendant did not deny having taken possession of the goods, but gave evidence which went to show that Robson had broken one condition of his mortgage, which stated that he should not be in arrears with his rent. Another condition was, that if Robson was guilty of any act which would jeopardize defendant's security, he (defendant) should have the right to enter and take possession; and it was contended that Robson was guilty of such an act when he called a meeting of his creditors. His Honor, after hearing counsel, nonsuited plaintiff, principally on the ground that insolvent did an act by giving notice of meeting to his creditors which showed defendant that his security was in danger, and that he was therefore justified in taking possession. Seven guineas were allowed for counsel's fees, in addition to costs of witnesses. Mr. Bruce Smith (instructed by Allen and Allen), appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. C. J. Manning (instructed by Mr. De Lissa) for defendant.

NORRIS V. COLLINS.

In this case plaintiff sought to recover the value of some photographic apparatus ordered by plaintiff, conjointly with defendant, under a partnership agreement existing some time ago. The defence was based on the fact of the existing partnership at the time the plaint was issued, and on this ground his Honor granted a nonsuit. Mr. Pitcairn (instructed by Julian and Borlase) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Bruce Smith (instructed by Mr. Roberts) for defendant.

THE QUEEN AT A JESUIT COLLEGE.—The St. James's Gazette of March 10 states that on the previous day the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, drove to the College of the Jesuit Fathers, Beaumont, Old Windsor, in order to receive from the boys a congratulatory address upon her escape from assassination. At the lodge-entrance of the college a pretty triumphal arch, bearing in gold lettering the inscription "Pro Deo, Regina, et Patria," with festoons and other floral accessories, supplemented by a show of bunting, had been erected. A semi-circular space in front of the gates was laid with crimson cloth, the edge of which near the road was fringed with evergreens and flowers, and the boys, about 200 in number, were marshalled round this semi-circle. The road outside was thronged with spectators. The Queen and Princess Beatrice arrived at the college in an open carriage about 4 o'clock. Their appearance was greeted with deafening cheers, which lasted for several minutes. The Queen and Princess were received by the rector of the college, the Rev. Francis Cassidy, and Mr. C. E. De Trafford, who were introduced by Sir Henry Ponsonby and Captain Edwards to the royal visitors. Mr. De Trafford, the senior boy, read and then handed to her Majesty the address. The Queen thanked him, assuring him that she was very much flattered by the loyal and kind address of the boys. Some beautiful bouquets were then presented to her Majesty and Princess Beatrice by Michell Wood and Charles Wood (sons of Sir Evelyn Wood), Frederick Fane, and Francis Robertson, to each of whom the Queen spoke very kindly. The National Anthem was then sung with enthusiasm. The Queen and Princess quitted Old Windsor amid the enthusiastic applause of the spectators.

POLICE.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

Mr. Dillon, S.M., sat on the Criminal side of the court yesterday.

Patrick Finn was charged with loitering in Hyde Park with intent to commit a felony. Detective Tindale deposed that about 1 a.m. of Sunday he saw prisoner examining the clothes of a man who lay drunk in Hyde Park. He handed up a paper to Mr. Dillon, which his Worship said was a list of five convictions against the prisoner since 1866, two of which were of a serious character, resulting in sentences of two years' imprisonment. To be imprisoned six months.

Elizabeth M'Cluskey, found guilty of using obscene language, was sentenced to pay a penalty of £5, or to be imprisoned three months. A memorandum was handed up to the Bench containing a list of 28 convictions for various offences.

Andrew Lawson, found guilty of having resisted Constable Houghton in the execution of his duty, and John Thomas, convicted of inciting a prisoner in custody to resist Constable Gibbons, were severally sentenced to pay 60s., or to be imprisoned one month.

William Martin was found guilty of being a suspected person frequenting Hyde Park with intent to commit a felony. About 1 o'clock on Sunday morning Constable Conlon saw him on his knees examining the pockets of a man who lay asleep in the park, and took him into custody. To be imprisoned three months.

Ann Jane Cook was sentenced to be imprisoned three months, and Caroline Lindor to be imprisoned six months, for vagrancy.

Mary Johnson, an old offender, was summarily convicted of having stolen a piece of stair carpet, valued at 10s. 6d., the property of Richard J. Hughes, and was sentenced to be imprisoned seven days.

John William Lee and William Jones were charged with forging and uttering an order for the payment of money. Detective Camphin apprehended the prisoners, and produced a cheque on the City Bank, dated 13-5-82, for payment of the sum of £25, and bearing the signature of John M'Donald; produced also a piece of paper found on prisoner Lee, the writing on which corresponded with the writing in the body of the cheque; produced also a book claimed by Lee, the writing in which was of like character; Lee said also that he had cashed at the City Bank three cheques given to him by Jones: Jones was present, heard what Lee said, and denied the statement. John M'Donald, of Lachlan River, miner, deposed that he has an account with the City Bank, but the cheque produced was not drawn either by him or by any one with his consent. Louisa Lee deposed that prisoner Lee gave her the cheque, directing her to give it to her father to get the cash, and to reserve £23 of the proceeds until his return from Melbourne. Edward Lee received the cheque of his daughter, and presented it for payment; it was not paid. The prisoners offered no defence, and were committed for trial at the Central Criminal Court.

In the afternoon a few summons cases were heard by Messrs. Dillon, Crane, and Clarke. They were of no public interest.

WATER POLICE COURT.

Mr. Marsh, S.M., heard Criminal cases yesterday morning.

Alfred Vaughan, a seaman belonging to H.M.S. Cormorant, was charged, by Detective Wigg with having deserted from the vessel, at Sydney, on the 7th October, 1881, and was remanded to be dealt with by the naval authorities.

James Edwards was sent to gaol for a month for stealing an album, of the value of 7s. 6d., the property of E. R. Cole, George-street. The evidence was very simple, for it was shown that the prisoner, who is a tailor by trade, entered Mr. Cole's bookshop on Saturday night, and deliberately stole the album. He was then in liquor; and in the dock shook and trembled as if still suffering from the effects of a debauch.

William Tillie, a 'bus-driver, was, at the instance of Special-constable Scales, fined £5, or, in default, one month's imprisonment, for cruelly ill-treating a horse. The charge was very clearly proved, and in passing sentence Mr. Marsh uttered a few words of sharp reprimand to the prisoner.

Marion Hunt, a woman of bad character, was sent to gaol for a month for riotous conduct.

Esau Henry Curran and Peter or Patrick Ward, two boys, 11 years of age, were sent on board the Vernon, at the instance of Sergeant Pirie and Senior-constable Corrigan, evidence being given that they had been seen wandering about the streets in company with reputed thieves and that their parents exercise little or no control over them.

Patrick Maguire, a youth of 19, described as a labourer, was charged with playing at an unlawful game of chance, to wit, "bays and greys," on the Randwick racecourse, while open to public resort by payment of money, on Saturday, 22nd instant. After evidence in support of the charge had been given, Mr. Lowe, for the defence, contended that the Randwick racecourse was not an open and a public place within the meaning of the Act. Mr. Marsh reserved his decision until Thursday next.

In the Summons Court Mr. Buchanan, S.M., presided and dealt with a number of minor cases. Inspector E. Oram proceeded against 14 persons for breaking the Transit Commissioners' bylaws, and in every case secured a conviction.

EXPLOSION OF "INFERNAL MACHINES" IN EDINBURGH.

(From the Scotsman, February 18.)

An outrage, almost without precedent in the history of crime in the city, though of a nature not, unfortunately, unheard of recently in other parts of the country, occurred on Wednesday in Edinburgh, whereby eight persons belonging to two families were more or less injured, and the houses in which they resided partially wrecked. The mischief was done by what have come to be known as "infernal machines"—that is to say, boxes charged with an explosive material, and constructed in such a way that upon their being opened a violent explosion occurred, which placed the members of the households who had received them in the greatest jeopardy. In the one case a box was sent to Mr. A. M'Donald, No. 6, Hill-place, and in the other to Miss M. Barron, 19, St. James'-street; and it appeared at once, on inquiry, that the circumstances connected with both occurrences clearly pointed to a common sender; and later in the evening a man, who it is known had uttered grievous threats against both parties, was taken into custody on suspicion of being the perpetrator of the outrages. The circumstances under which the explosion in Hill-place occurred were these:—Shortly before 7 o'clock, while Mr. William M'Donald, agent for H. M. Inspector of Industrial Schools, and the members of his family, together with the wife of Mr. John Smith, baker, Duke-street, Leith, who had been on a visit, were sitting in the back parlour chatting after tea, a box, about a foot square, and some four or five inches in depth, was handed in by a railway vanman, whose delivery-book was signed by Mr. M'Donald's daughter Charlotte. The box had been prepaid, and there was nothing on the gray wrapper over it to indicate where it had come from, but the address, "Alexr. M'Donald, 6, Hill-place, Edinburgh," was written in a bold hand on a piece of white paper. The box was thus intended for Mr. M'Donald's son, Alexander, who, while residing at 5, Hill-square, is generally in his father's office in the early part of the evening. He had not, however, made his usual call when the box arrived, and Mrs. Smith having suggested that it might be from Pitlochry, where the family have some friends, the outside cover was removed, and on the box were found a series of pretty pictures, such as are commonly used in the decoration of firescreens, while in front of it were three drawers in a line, nicely varnished, and furnished with white "knobs." Curiosity was further excited by the fancy appearance of the box, and as it occurred to Mr. M'Donald, sen., that it might be associated with St. Valentine's day, he proposed pulling out the centre drawer, which was the only one of the three that seemed intended for opening, the others being merely imitation drawers. Mrs. Smith, however, interposed the remark, "Oh! that's not fair, it's for Sandy." Mr. M'Donald accordingly gave up the idea of opening the box, and just as he was leaving the back parlour to attend to some business matters in the office, his son Alexander entered the house. He was at once informed of the "beautiful box" that was in waiting for him, and proceeded to the back parlour for the purpose of opening it. No sooner, however, had he attempted to open the centre drawer with a knife than the contents of the box exploded with a loud report. Mr. M'Donald, sen., who was in the act of returning to the parlour when the occurrence took place, says that the explosion was instantly followed by a great flame, but he had scarcely had time to observe this when he was thrown down in the lobby by the parlour door, which was blown off its hinges. A minute afterwards the house was enveloped in smoke, and two other explosions as loud as the first were heard. The noise attracted the attention of residents in the locality, and the door of Mr. M'Donald's house was forced open, when Mr. M'Donald, jun., rushed out, declaring that he was blind. He ran to the shop of Mr. Linton, druggist, which is close at hand, and was then taken in a cab to his medical attendant, Dr. Church, who afforded him temporary relief, after which he was removed to his own house. He is much burned about the head, and his face is a good deal swollen, but it is not thought that the injury to the eyes will prove so serious as was at first anticipated. Mrs. Smith was severely bruised about the head and face, but after being attended to by Dr. Church in the house of Mr. Alexander M'Donald, she was able to be taken home in a cab. Mrs. M'Donald, sen., was burned pretty much in the same way as Mrs. Smith, but her hands have also been a good deal scorched, particularly the right one. A grandchild, Elizabeth Galloway, who stayed in the house, was badly burned about the face, head, and neck; but, fortunately a woman who was in Mr. M'Donald's office had the presence of mind to pick up the girl, who is about four years of age, and convey her to the infirmary, where she was promptly attended to. Mr. M'Donald, sen., was not seriously injured by the fall of the door, and a daughter who was in the parlour when the box was opened escaped with the singeing of her hair. By the explosion articles were tossed about the room in all directions, a partition wall between the parlour and the office was blown back some distance, the upright supports of it being blown down, and the wall stripped of plaster. The window of the parlour was blown out, as was also that of the office, while the flooring of the room in which the explosion occurred was torn up, and the ceiling of the kitchen, which apartment is down a flight of stairs from the parlour, is considerably damaged. In fact, the house has been partially wrecked, and will not be habitable till it has undergone extensive repairs.

THE BULLETIN LIBEL FUND.

A public meeting for the purpose of making a statement of the receipts and disbursements in connection with the Bulletin Libel Fund, was held last evening in the Masonic Hall. Mr. D. O'Connor, M.L.A., presided (in the absence of the Mayor of Sydney), and there was a crowded attendance. Among those on the platform were Messrs. N. Melville, M.L.A., T. M. Slattery, M.L.A., R. Lennox Rowling, G. Withers, M.L.A., J. A. Hogue, G. R. Dibbs, M. Hammond (Mayor of Ashfield), W. H. Traill, Montague Levy, Geo. Wallace (Newcastle), P. R. Holdsworth, John Haynes, Jas. Chisholm, J. Vicars, and R. Luscombe.

The CHAIRMAN, after expressing regret for what he had no doubt was the unavoidable absence of the Mayor, stated that the meeting had been called to hear a statement of the accounts in connection with the fund started to relieve two men from prison, into which they had been cast for their advocacy in the interests of the prosperity and morality of the community. (Applause.) It was a matter of sincere joy that they had Mr. Haynes among them, and he regretted that Mr. Archibald had by illness been prevented from attending the meeting. (Cheers.) An appeal had been made to the people, and in a very short time the money was forthcoming. (Applause.) It was not the mere fact of Mr. Haynes and Mr. Archibald being imprisoned that had aroused the sympathy of the people; but the fact that the bulwark of the people, the freedom of the press, was in danger. (Applause.) He did not wish to say anything about the tribunal of the Supreme Court, but the people of this country would demand that men of the most excellent character and purest public life should be appointed to the positions in that Court. (Hear, hear.) This demonstration had been emphatic as a protest against the lowering dogma that the press was merely a commercial speculation. (Cheers.)

Mr. HOLDSWORTH read letters of apology for the non-attendance of Messrs. G. H. Reid, M.L.A., and W. R. Campbell.

Mr. G. R. DIBBS said that he had to lay before the meeting a statement of the accounts. He laid on the table a list giving a full statement of the whole of the subscriptions. He had to announce the receipt of subscriptions to the extent of £110 from public-spirited Newcastle alone. (Cheers.) There were outstanding subscriptions amounting to about £95 which he had yet to receive, and it was in anticipation of receiving that amount that two or three of them went bail to the bank for the release of Messrs. Haynes and Archibald. (Cheers.) The most important document was a treasurer's account current; and he would read the items in that statement, because it would be satisfactory to the meeting to know how the money had been disposed of. As many gentlemen upon whom he had waited had desired to know what had become of the money that had been subscribed on a former occasion, he would state that the first item he had to put down in his list of receipts for this fund was £103, being the balance of the former subscription. (Hear, hear.) The total amount of receipts was £699 16s. 1d., from which they had paid, in settlement of the law costs resulting from the judgment, the sum of £597 7s. 7½d.; sheriff's fees and poundage, £17 8s.; bailiff's fees, £2 2s.; and ca. sa., £1 11s.; the total amount of the disbursements being £618 8s. 7d. The disbursements for clerical assistance, advertising, printing lists, &c., was about £80, the details of which expenditure were open to the inspection of any subscriber. He had to publicly thank the subscribers for the very liberal subscriptions to the fund, and to express his gratification at the treatment he had received in the performance of his duties in connection with this fund. He believed there would never in the history of Australia be any occasion again for such a fund as this, because he believed that the good work which had been commenced would be completed, and a reform effected by the assistance of the people, through whom all legislation must take place. (Applause.) They had had in this work the assistance of members of Parliament, and the promise that every effort would be made to secure the passage of such a law as would prevent this scandal ever occurring again. (Cheers.) He would ask the people to insist that members of Parliament should do their duty, and that the Government should do its duty by not shirking this question for other and less important matters.

Alderman G. WALLACE (of Newcastle), said he represented a city which had furnished one-sixth of the whole amount required for the Bulletin fund. (Applause.) From the first his sympathies had been with Messrs. Haynes and Archibald, but he agreed with what Mr. Dibbs had said about the general tone of the Bulletin. He had found the general tone of the paper a stumbling-block in his efforts to collect subscriptions. People thought they were asked to subscribe in aid of the Bulletin, but the subscriptions raised were not in the interests of the Bulletin—they were to defend a great principle. The article which led to the trial exposed a great abuse; the evidence produced at the trial showed this abuse to be ten times worse than the article represented to be; Messrs. Haynes and Archibald defended the action in the interests of morality, and they deserved the support of the public. (Applause.) He had much pleasure in moving the following resolution:—"That this meeting desires to welcome back to public life Messrs. Haynes and Archibald, and is of opinion that any balance of subscriptions that may remain after all outstanding claims are met, and proper provision made to meet necessary expenses of obtaining an alteration of the libel law, should be handed over to Messrs. Haynes and Archibald as a token of appreciation of their conduct in reference to the Clontarf case." (Applause.)

Mr. HOLDSWORTH seconded the resolution. A great battle would have to be fought before the present libel law was got rid of, but if we only used the lever of common sense placed on the fulcrum of justice, and used the power that lay in the will of the people, we should accomplish the great object we had in view. (Applause.)

The resolution was carried unanimously.

Mr. HAYNES (who was received with much applause) apologized for the absence of Mr. Archibald, who was prevented from attending the meeting by ill health. He thought the position at which they had now arrived was one of victory—victory over bad law and over personified infamy. (Applause.) But this cause was no longer their own; it was the cause of the people, and must result in reform, and the sweeping of old and bad laws into obscurity. (Applause.) The reason he and Mr. Archibald had been put into gaol was because they had had the courage to expose a notorious infamy which was eating the vitals of the community—(applause)—and when it was shown at the trial that the article had been published in the interests of morality and in good faith something else against the paper was brought forward, and an attempt was made to crush them. He could walk the streets without fear of any man, and could look any man in the face, and he denied the statements of those who had felt the lash of the Bulletin that the paper dived into the private life of individuals. He had not been ten days in gaol when the news came through the padlocks that there would be no more music licenses down the harbour, and he at once said, "That is one for us." (Applause.) Then he found that every paper in this and the adjoining colonies condemned the action of the Judges at the trial, and this made the imprisonment light. It could not be seen now that the picnic monster was dead—(applause)—and that there was a great work before the country—the passing of better laws, so that among other things the press might speak out without the gaol door being open to receive the writer. (Applause.) He returned his warmest thanks to the people of the colony for the money that had been subscribed, and particularly to those gentlemen who had taken a special interest in the movement. (Applause.)

Mr. T. M. SLATTERY said he did not agree with some things which Mr. Haynes had stated, and he defended the profession to which he belonged from statements made by Mr. Haynes against lawyers generally. He and his partner, Mr. Heydon, unaided, undertook the defence of Messrs. Haynes and Archibald. They obtained for them the best counsel at the Bar, and became responsible for their fees to the extent of £400, and until the subscriptions came in from the public they never received a single shilling. (Applause.) Therefore there was another side to anything that was said against the lawyers. (Applause.) He undertook the defence of Messrs. Haynes and Archibald because he knew that what had been stated by the writer of the article in the Bulletin was true, and he determined to do one man's part to put down an outrageous evil. (Applause.) But the press of this country was in no danger from the Judges of the Supreme Court; it was in danger only from incompetent or corrupt jurymen. (Applause.) He was very pleased to see that Messrs. Haynes and Archibald had been released from confinement, and he congratulated the people of the country in having vindicated its honour and its morality. (Applause.)

Mr. W. H. TRAILL, in response to repeated calls, briefly addressed the meeting. He, as the writer of the article which had given rise to the libel action, could assure the meeting that the article was the honest expression of the opinions which he had formed in his own mind when he was witnessing the truly terrible scenes at Clontarf, when he saw not merely roughs and evil women, but the sons and daughters of decent people, lured into scenes that he regarded as awful. (Cheers.) He returned, on behalf of himself and Messrs. Haynes and Archibald, the heartiest thanks for the manner in which the public had stood by them. (Cheers.)

Mr. N. MELVILLE, M.L.A., congratulated Messrs. Haynes and Archibald on their release from prison. He could speak rather feelingly in regard to this matter, because he, for having had the courage as a public man to denounce what he deemed to be a great evil, had been threatened with the fate that had overtaken Messrs. Haynes and Archibald, but he was determined to fight it out to the last. (Cheers.)

The proceedings terminated with a vote of thanks to the chairman, on the motion of Alderman WITHERS, seconded by Mr. M. LEVEY.

CONTUMACIOUS CLERGYMEN.—A bill has been introduced into the House of Commons by Mr. Lloyd, M.P., with respect to "contumacious clerks." It empowers a judge of an ecclesiastical court to deprive a clergyman of his benefice, in case of contumacy in disobeying an order for suspension or inhibition or in hindering an authorised clergyman from officiating in his stead. The order for deprivation may, if the judge think fit, be directed not to take effect for three months—thus giving to the clergyman an opportunity of making his peace with the judge. None of these orders for deprivation, however, may be made in any court that is inferior to the provincial Courts of Canterbury or York, except by a bishop in person. Mr. Green is kept in view in this measure—the orders for deprivation being made applicable to clergymen who are already suspended.

WHAT a comfort it is to be warmly clad when going to business on a dreary winter's morning; but who would be foolish enough to suffer from cold when a splendid large £1 Overcoat can be procured at Hiler Brothers' for 12s 9d !—ADV.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND SUNDAY SCHOOL INSTITUTE.

The second annual meeting of the Church of England Sunday School Institute was held last night in St. James' schoolroom, Castlereagh-street. The Very Rev. the Vicar-General occupied the chair, and among the clergy present were the Revs. R. S. Willis, E. G. Hodgson, M.A., W. Hough, E. Sturdee, T. Holme, and Canon Gunther, Messrs. A. Gordon, and C. Stuart. After prayer offered by the Rev. Dr. Marriott, the honorary secretary of the institute,

The Rev. CHAIRMAN read a note from the Venerable Archdeacon King, apologising for his absence on the ground of an engagement made prior to the notice convening the present meeting, and added that he was aware from personal information that many other gentlemen, clerical as well as lay, would gladly have been present had the notification of the meeting been earlier and more extensively made. He was quite sure that the clergy generally were greatly interested in the Sunday School Institute, and anxious to the utmost of their ability to promote its influence. The object of this institute was to improve the organization and the spirit and tone of the Sunday schools. Without proper organization a school could not be properly conducted, and in a school that was disorganized very little could be done. A school in which there was not punctuality on the part of the teachers and pupils was in a state of great imperfection. Punctuality and order should be observed at every Sunday school, and they should endeavour to obtain teachers whose hearts were thoroughly in the work. If teachers had not their hearts in the work, if they did not go to it in a spirit of love they would not make good teachers. Where there was a spirit of love for the work it was astonishing how soon those who had that love improved in their power of teaching. They should not think that Sunday school teaching was to be taken up as a mere matter of duty, but in a spirit of love, and there should also be unity of action amongst all those who took part in the work.

The HON. SECRETARY (the Rev. Dr. Marryott) then read the following report:—"To the members of the Church of England Sunday-school Institute of the diocese of Sydney.—Ladies and Gentlemen,—On account of the youth of this institution the first annual report of your committee was a statement of its origin, constitution, and aims, rather than a record of its proceedings. This, their second annual report, will simply set forth the work and progress of this association during the past year, 1881-2. At the commencement of the year this institute consisted of 18 affiliated schools and 81 members; it now numbers 34 affiliated schools, and 36 clerical and 78 lay, or a total of 114 members in its ranks. Thus, the increase in the number of schools has been at the rate of nearly 89 per cent., while the increase in members has been at the rate of about 40 per cent. Every possible effort was made by your committee to obtain the lesson courses and notes thereon, published by the parent society for use in our schools at the beginning of the ecclesiastical year. The time of their publication in England was, however, too late to admit of this being done. To meet our requirements the parent society holds out the prospect of an earlier publication and monthly supply for next year. Notwithstanding the delay and consequent disappointment, the institute's courses of lessons and notes are already in use in at least 15 schools; and the clergy of several other parishes have signified their intention to introduce them next year. Model lessons have been given at five centres, affording an opportunity for the teachers of 35 schools to attend them. These lessons were given by the Rev. E. G. Hodgson, M.A., of St. Paul's College; Mr. Bardsley, of St. James' School, and Mr. Bent, of Newtown, to all of whom your committee are greatly indebted. Mr. Bardsley has generously placed his services at the disposal of the committee for any time and place they may require them. In the month of October last the Lord Bishop of North Queensland, at the invitation of your committee, delivered a most interesting and instructive address on Sunday school work, to a crowded audience of teachers and friends in the Church Society's room. The secretary has communicated with the rural deans throughout the diocese, suggesting the formation of local associations, but in no case has this step yet been found practicable. With a view to interest the teachers more deeply in the work of Sunday schools, and to acquaint them with the work of the parent society and its current literature, your committee have purchased and distributed to the Sunday schools in the diocese, 100 copies each of the 'Sunday School Magazine' and the 'Sunday Scholar's Companion.' It is further arranged to provide, in future, every member of this institute, monthly, with a copy of the new society's new publication 'The Church Worker.' It has been found advisable to change the commencement of this institute's financial year from January 1 to April 1. While your committee acknowledge with heartfelt gratitude the measure of prosperity which this society has enjoyed during the past year, they deeply lament the loss which this institute has sustained by the death of its promoter, friend, and patron, the Lord Bishop of the diocese. Your committee would venture respectfully to urge upon the attention of the members the necessity for greater interest and activity in the work of Sunday schools generally, and in the aims and operations of this society particularly. For the encouragement of all be it remembered that 'God is not unrighteous; that He will forget your works and labour that proceedeth of love'; and that he will not fail to own and bless the pious intention which is sustained and effected by wise and earnest endeavour."

The balance-sheet showed that there was a sum of £1 7s. 8d. to the credit of the institute.

The Rev. Canon MORETON moved the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, and gave the result of his inquiries during his recent visit to England of the working of the kindred institute at home. He believed this institute would materially strengthen its position by drawing as closely as possible to the great institute in England. (Hear, hear.)

The Rev. THOMAS HOLME seconded the motion, and also spoke of the great interest shown in Sunday school work in the mother country. He thought that there was a necessity for more distinctive Church teaching in Sunday schools. There was another matter to which he wished to refer, and that was the difficulty of obtaining the publication of the Church of England Sunday School Institute in the country towns. They ought to obtain the publication of the institute in the centres of population throughout the length and breadth of the colony, and until they accomplished that they could not expect to have effective Sunday school teachers.

The Rev. Mr. HODGSON moved an amendment,—"That this annual meeting be adjourned to a date of which 14 days' notice shall be given to each associated school."

After a brief discussion the amendment was put and negatived, and the original motion agreed to.

The following gentlemen were elected a committee for the year 1882-3, namely:—The Very Rev. Vicar-General, the Revs. E. G. Hodgson, M.A., Canon Gunther, M.A., W. Hough, A. Yarnold, T. B. Tress, A. W. Pain, J. W. Debenham, E. Sturdee, and Messrs. F. W. Uther, Dr. Beatty, V. W. Giblin, J. Marshall, T. Moore, J. Bardsley, W. A. Hutchinson, J. Clark, and A. W. Green. The Rev. E. G. Hodgson, M.A., was appointed hon. secretary, and Mr. John Clarke hon. treasurer of the institute for the ensuing year.

It was decided to postpone the conference of teachers until some future date, and after a vote of thanks had been passed to the Rev. Dr. Marriott for his valuable services during the preceding year, the benediction was pronounced, and the meeting closed.

"A Botanical Sketch in connection with the Geological Features of New South Wales," by Mr. R. Fitzgerald, was read before the Linnean Society (says the European Mail). The author asked, "How has the distribution of the vegetation originated?" That the Australian continent has risen slowly is gathered from numerous proofs—among others, the horizontality of the strata being very manifest. In its uplifting the outer rim of the continent was slightly more elevated than the interior, and what between a once inland sea, marshes, and mud, and a once probable greater rainfall, all, and especially the latter, produced the present physical features. Whence the coal seams? Are they not the remains of vegetation borne from a continent lying eastward, whereof New Zealand, Norfolk, and Howe Islands are but vestiges? The most typical group of Australian vegetation is the Proteaceæ, found chiefly in the sandstone of poor country. It is a very ancient family, extending back to the secondary period of geology, since which Australia has never been submerged. The remarkably close gradation of species of the Banksias, &c., point out no loss of connecting links, as would have happened had submergence and elevation occurred. Were the Epacrids once a family of trees, the living species being decadent examples? The Casuarineæ are, undoubtedly, an ancient family, and, like conifers, flourished in the dawn of life. The nettles and palms, inhabitants of the eastern coast range, possibly may have had an Asiatic origin, through the Malayan Archipelago. The sassafras, tree ferns, and myrtles, growing on the cold mountain scrubs, hold a conspicuous place, and evidently had an Australian derivation. The Compositæ and Chenopodiaceæ (salt bushes) found in the interior plains are rapidly disappearing, the small species giving place to introduced grasses and weeds. As regards acacias and eucalyptus, they have the widest distribution and most complicated genera. They both appear to be at their zenith, having existed long enough to pass into redundant forms, but not long enough to have been exposed to vicissitudes and decline. Their absence from New Zealand and Norfolk Island implies they did not belong to the eastern submerged continent, nor are they old enough to be found with the laurel and other remains of the gold drift. Mr. J. R. Jackson exhibited a specimen of the Australian native "Pituri" bag. Formerly the leaf of the plant was only known, but Baron Von Mueller has lately shown from other evidence that it is derived from Duboisia Hopwoodii.

The Home News says:—It appears we have not yet heard the last of the advantages Australian natural products are to confer upon the world at large. The valuable qualities of the blue gumtree as an antiseptic and antidote against malaria are already well known, and large plantations of the eucalyptus promise soon to render the Roman Campagna and other fever-stricken localities endurable and habitable. Now it seems that a discovery has been made of a certain preparation of the eucalyptus which is an infallible specific against consumption. The discovery has been made by the Hon. Wyndham Stanhope, who has been residing for the winter at Maderia. If this medicine really proves efficacious it will no doubt lead to an increased demand of the plant. It is already largely cultivated, especially in California, where people expect it to form a very profitable branch of forestry. The growth there is extraordinarily rapid. Twelve years ago a Mr. Collins planted a number at the rate of 68 to the acre, but eight feet apart. In a year they had grown 100 feet high, and had a proportionate diameter, and from a plantation of 20 years he cleared a profit yearly of some 400 dollars. Cannot something like this be made out of the cultivation of the blue gum in its original home.

THE MORMONS.

(From the Pall Mall Gazette.)

In a dirty, dismal, ill-conditioned street in Pentonville there is a tall old house which makes public announcement of itself as a "dancing academy," and which has painted up over one of its interior doors, "Latter-day Saints' Meeting Room." Here, every Sunday and one night during the week, assembles the Mormon population of North London. As may be guessed, the "Saints" are not a numerous body. On Sunday night, when they were apparently in full force, the congregations numbered about 100, among whom females greatly predominated, about one-third being girls whose ages ranged from ten years to about eighteen. There were, perhaps, about two dozen men present. Six of these, being elders or office-bearers, were seated round a table, which does duty for a pulpit, at the head of the room. The "Saints," both male and female, seemed to belong to the lower working class, and to be such persons as would be likely to find a strong argument for the Mormon religion in the fact that it has an earthly Zion. There was little show of reverential feeling before the commencement of the service. Those who were present laughed and talked with as much ease and freedom as if they were out of doors. There is, however, very little about a Mormon religious service that encourages solemnity of feeling or conveys the idea of worship. On Sunday night the proceedings commenced by the singing of a hymn, to a galloping tune, from a book which has a short preface signed by Brigham Young, Elder Pratt, and John Taylor, the present head of the Mormon Church, and which, among its other very miscellaneous contents, has a lyric commencing, "Deseret, Deseret, the home of the free!" After the hymn there was a minute's pause, and then a stalwart young "elder" from Utah, in a voice which comes "through his nose and his mouth," rose to preach what he spoke of as "the Gospel." In a modest preface he informed his hearers that he had had no special theological education, that he had never been particularly pious, and that until recently he had not even been accustomed to read the Bible; but having now "been anointed to the work, and feeling the assurance that he was chosen, he knew that the Lord would teach him what to say." After this remarkable opening, he launched out into a singularly rambling discourse, the object of which, as he deliberately announced, was "to show that all other sects are wrong, and that we only are right." Still, he would not be so uncharitable as to commit himself to the assertion that the other sects were wholly in error. He was good enough to admit that there might be little grains of truth in the doctrines of each of them, but they were none the less devoted to perdition. It was a mistake, he said, to suppose that the Mormons had cast the Bible aside. It was the foundation of their Gospel. They founded their faith upon it. The Book of Mormon was in no sense a Bible, but a record of the history of the ancient Jewish settlers in America. These settlers, it seems, emigrated across the Atlantic in the reign of Zedekiah, and became American Redskins. Some day they would again become white men, and be brought back into the fold. The Bible, indeed, referred plainly to America in those passages where it spoke of the Church of God and the city of Zion, "which the Latter-Day Saints profess to be." No minister of any other denomination could argue with a Mormon from the Scriptures. No other religion accepted the book in its literal sense like the Mormons. "I know," he continued, "that the Lord will substantiate the claim that I make to be His servant, and will approve of the Gospel that I preach." Towards the end of his discourse he drew a remarkable picture of what the world was coming to:—The cup of its iniquity is pretty nearly full. The Lord cannot, in common fairness, delay his punishments much longer. The world is in a shocking condition, and there are abundant signs of the latter days. The Mormons do not expect to make many more converts in England. The great harvest of this part of the earth is over. We are but looking for the scattered sheep, the gleanings, the last soul that is worthy. After that has been found, the Jews will be gathered together to Jerusalem, the Mormons to their earthly Zion, and the lost tribes to their appointed place, and then the remainder of the inhabitants of the world will be destroyed by wars, earthquakes, plagues, and similar visitations, after which the Saints will inherit the earth, with a fair field and no favour.

Then, after having explained what will happen to those who do not believe, the speaker invoked a blessing on his mission, and sat down. He was succeeded by a dark, wild-eyed, harsh-looking man, "bearded like a pard." This person hesitated for a minute, then raised his voice into a harsh monotone, and delivered "the message that God, in His infinite mercy, has concocted" in a rattle of ill-chosen words, linking his periods together with ands and buts and alsos, and closing each of them with mysterious references to "the meridian of time." The Mormons, he said, are not exclusive, because "the Gospel is open to all the sons of Adam, except the sons of perdition, who shall be judged accordingly thereunto." After this came other speeches, in which the Deity was introduced with the familiar and colloquial "He says, says He." Then followed a very important Mormon ceremony. One of the elders produced a bottle of oil. "It is to be anointed," he said, "for the healing of the sick;" and the process of "anointing" was performed at once. Three of the previous speakers each laid a hand on the bottle, while a prayer was offered up asking that the Lord would consecrate it to His good purposes. There was one person present who desired to be healed. He was a light-haired, rosy youth who apparently suffered from lameness. Seating himself at the table he awaited the miracle. One of the "brethren" poured some oil on him from the newly-consecrated bottle, and vigorously rubbed the crown of his head, after which the elders "laid hands upon him," saying, "We, His servants, bearing His holy priesthood, lay our hands on your heads, and, praying that any pain may be removed from this time henceforth, command the same to depart from you and trouble you no more." They then assured him that if he had sufficient faith he would be healed. The excitement with which this operation had been followed by the congregation had hardly subsided when the elder with the harsh voice and the rattling delivery announced, "We will therefore conclude with the singing of the 20th hymn;" after which a short prayer brought this peculiar service to an end.

Judged merely by its Sunday services Mormonism can scarcely be called a religion. What would be sermons in ordinary places of worship are in the Mormon meeting-houses loose attacks on the various forms of Christianity, and fervent eulogies of Salt Lake City and Joseph Smith. There are no stirring appeals to the emotions of the hearers; no attempt is made to rouse devotion; there is no call to "a better life." Neither the Bible nor the Book of Mormon is read publicly. The services are, indeed, to an outsider utterly flat, stale, and unprofitable. They arouse wonder at the evident earnestness and sincerity of the congregation, and set the mind speculating as to the mental condition of men and women who sit in rapt attention while an illiterate preacher babbles for three-quarters of an hour about nothing in particular, and uses arguments and illustrations which even the most ignorant could recognize as ridiculous. Yet the Mormons not only retain those who have once embraced the faith, but are continually making new converts. There is a thin but constant stream of emigration from London to Utah. A ship which sails in the middle of this month will, for instance, considerably reduce the little congregation in Pentonville. The London emigrants will have for company many new converts from the provinces, to which the apostles and prophets occasionally make flying visits, and where, as has been the case with prophets from time immemorial, they not infrequently get stoned.

(From the San Francisco Bulletin.)

Salt Lake, Utah, February 23.—The following appears in the Tribune this morning: Last night all Utah was flooded with printed memorials intended to be sent on to Congress and begging that body not to interfere with the polygamous practices of the Mormon Church. This memorial sets forth that the young people of Utah are fully in accord with the doctrines of polygamy, and that they consider the practices of the same by their parents has been uniformly pure and ennobling. For several days past these petitions have been sent in bundles all over Utah, and yesterday was the day set apart to do the grand work of obtaining signatures. Each school was canvassed and every little boy and girl old enough to hold a pen was required to sign. The Bishop made addresses in each school and said: "We would be ashamed to know that any little boy or girl would refuse to sign this paper; you don't amount to anything if you do not; you will simply be looked upon as nothing; your name will go to Washington, where the big Congressmen live, and they will all read your name." After this stirring appeal none would refuse to sign, and as the line filed out of the door each one signed. Many who signed were in the primer class, learning the alphabet and unable to read. If they could not make a legible scrawl, the teachers or bishops would get permission to write the name for them. The children looked upon the thing as a sort of diversion which broke the monotony of the regular routine of school life, and had the petition memorialized Congress to give them all the small-pox, the signing would have gone on just the same. Last night men went from house to house getting signatures. Children were made to sign, and grown people who refused knew that they would be cut off from the Church and their business ruined. In many instances, however, Mormons refused to sign the vile document, and politely declined to have anything to do with the petitions. One lady, when requested to sign, gave the caller the following answer: "I have lived in polygamy, and I will not sign the document or allow any child of mine to sign it. We all loathe and despise it, and we don't propose to say over our signature that we like it. It looks to me as if the hour of deliverance for Utah was at hand, and I am glad of it." There are plenty more grown Mormons who see the handwriting on the wall, and feel the iniquitous reign of the priesthood in Utah is over. Expulsion from the Church does not mean what it did when Brigham, "The Lion of the Lord," lashed his tail and clashed his yellow fangs at his frightened followers, in every village and hamlet in Utah. Last night men were tramping about with the petitions. Telegraphic dispatches went forth from the Church to complete the work in a single night, and there was not a Mormon house or cabin in the territory that was not visited by vile-minded curs, asking little children to indorse their own shame and their parents'. These signatures will all be collected in Salt Lake as soon as possible, and a monster petition, several hundred feet long, will be sent to Congress, calling upon it to forbear to strike the blow. While the petition is going, thousands of mothers who compelled their children to sign, because they dare not do anything else, will be on their knees praying for a happy deliverance from polygamy and better days for Utah. A few years ago the Mormons were telling the Gentiles to get up and leave the country if it did not suit them. They were bullying and arrogant to the last degree. Now they see the last ditch just a few feet ahead, and they are on their knees supplicating for mercy, and clinging to the very men they used to insult and abuse. The petition is the last kick of the Church in the unequal fight. The petitions are too late, and will be like whistling to stop a tornado. The Mormons continue greatly exercised over the situation, and are doing all they can to prevent Congressional legislation. The apostles and leading men hold meetings daily, and the Legislature is devising numerous schemes. Within two weeks petitions with thousands of Utah and Idaho signers will be in Washington. Already some leading Mormons have gone to Washington, and Moses Thatcher and John Henry Smith, apostles and members of the Legislature, leave to-day. Whether they are authorized to make concessions in behalf of the Church is not known, but the general feeling is that unless they are their mission will be vain. The more intelligent Mormons feel that matters have been carried too far, and they fear the consequences.

"AS OTHERS SEE US."

(From the Pall Mall Gazette.)

The remarks communicated under this title to the Fortnightly Review by Mr. Andrew Carnegie, the leader of an American party which in the course of the summer travelled from Brighton to Inverness by road, will be read here with amusement, and, we hope, not without instruction; for they bring out well a fundamental difference of English and American views. Most Englishmen know that in the United States the interest of politics is a subordinate one, and the calling of a statesman stands, as a calling, in rather low esteem. But there is something fresh in seeing that a party of Americans who came here at a time of political stir actually pity us for being so much troubled with such matters. They believe—whether on sufficient grounds we cannot here inquire—that their own "fundamentals of Government" are settled for a time beyond human foresight, and they cannot understand how we find life tolerable on any other conditions. They can see that we have our reasons for not thinking our institutions perfect as they are. But they are distressed by our fidgety transitional state. They wish that Englishmen "would get their political institutions to their liking, and then enjoy them in peace and be proud of them, instead of spending their political lives in assailing them." We may humbly suggest that we did enjoy our political institutions in peace and pride for a full generation after the Reform Act of 1832, which, for the nineteenth century is a fair spell of rest; and now we find a good many repairs thrust upon us. But our American friends are impatient with our pottering way of going to work. They want us to "cast off at one manly stroke" all our incumbrances. Unhappily there are very few things which can be cast off at one manly stroke, not even a coat or a pair of boots, and when a man must have his house fresh papered and painted, and has no other to live in, there is surely not much wisdom, however much manliness there may be, in setting the workmen at one stroke to paint and paper in every room. He will be put to some trouble at best, no doubt. And if a friend happens to come in the middle of the repairs, and stumbles over paintpots in the passages, that friend may go away thinking that the dwellers in the house are in a sad case. Yet it was a comfortable house enough to live in before the repairs began, and it will be after they are done. We beg to assure our American friends that our grumbling must be discounted a little. Our house is older than theirs, and not so symmetrical to look at, and there are plenty of queer corners and crooked stairs about it; in fact, no stranger was ever known to find his way over it. But its mediæval builders were no fools in their trade, and their walls are strong to this day. We are proud of them and of their work, and like to keep all of it that will serve our present uses. Much that by timid and ignorant people is called destruction is only the removal of blundering modern disfigurements and restoration of features decayed by time.

To drop metaphor, there is a delightful simplicity in some of the questions of the American travellers as reported by Mr. Carnegie. First, they were somewhat shocked at people being dissatisfied with the House of Lords; they knew, of course, that a House of Lords was illogical, but they had always thought all Englishmen liked it. But if we do not like it, they said, why not set up an elective Senate after the American pattern? One little difficulty is that, not being a Federation, we have no States to elect senators, and thus the substitution of an elected Chamber for the Peers, or the addition of an elective element to them, would involve a complete recasting of local government. On the whole it seems more rational to reform our local government first, which greatly wants doing on other grounds. Then our inquiring friends ask why we cannot "fix the land question and be done with it." Apparently, it did not occur to any of them that it is easy to have no land question when you have unlimited land for generations to come. Moreover, they saw Mr. Green in Lancashire Gaol, and were much scandalised, ascribing it all to the union of Church and State. It did not occur to them that if Mr. Green had been the minister of a disestablished or dissenting body, and disputes had arisen within that body whether his ministrations were in conformity to its rules, a civil court of justice might under quite possible circumstances have been called upon to decide the point. And if Mr. Green, for conscientious motives, had set the court and its jurisdiction at nought, he would assuredly have found himself in prison for contempt of court no less than he is now. Questions of this kind have repeatedly been dealt with by English and we presume by American, courts, in the affairs of unestablished churches and communions; and nothing but the obedience of the parties to their judgments has prevented the same consequences from following as in Mr. Green's case.

Then somebody told the party that English jurisprudence was in a lamentable condition. He seems also to have assumed that the civil code of the State of New York is actually law (which it is not), and is a model to be imitated (which in our opinion it is far from being). If he had known more of American law and jurisprudence, he might have known that they exhibit all the defects of our own on an exaggerated scale. In all the mechanism and detail of law reform and legislation the United States are, generally speaking, far behind us. And we are not aware that their procedure, except possibly in one or two States, is quicker, cheaper, or better in system. As for our law not being in a form satisfactory to the people, it may be true; but the apathy of the public about all plans for improving it has certainly been the despair of reforming lawyers for years past.

Concerning Ireland we are much nearer to agreement with Mr. Carnegie's friends. There a broad view of the situation by an impartial outsider is worth having, just because he is not encumbered with details or bound to work out means. And these Americans, it appears, think and say exactly what we have said and maintained—namely, that we shall never succeed in governing Ireland by Englishmen and according to English ideas. Mr. Carnegie's final words are given to the Throne. Americans it seems, exceed Englishmen if possible in personal respect for the Queen, and think that, being universally loved and honoured, she is "just the same as if she had been elected. It may seem odd to correct this by saying that the Queen is elected; but it is true. The Queen reigns by Act of Parliament and not otherwise. Her title to the Crown consists in answering the description in the Act of Settlement of the person who is to succeed to it—namely, the heir of the body of the Electress Sophia of Hanover, being Protestant. We do not know that this is theoretically more rational than the American method of electing a President. But we do know that nobody has yet offered to repeal the Act of Settlement, and that the machinery of the presidential election is found anything but satisfactory by the best American publicists. One or two American writers have even declared the Presidency a mistake altogether. It is new to us, again, to hear that the personal character of the President matters very little, while the existence of constitutional monarchy depends on the character of the sovereign. Mr. Carnegie can hardly be ignorant that the President of the United States has far more real power for good and for ill than our Queen. Some well-informed Americans, having seen both this country and their own, incline, unlike Mr. Carnegie and his party, to think our system of Cabinet and Parliamentary government under the forms of a limited monarchy is about the best republic yet produced.

THE LUNATIC RODERICK M'LEAN.—The following letter, addressed to the Standard by Mr. Henry Essex, throws some light upon the reasons which probably actuated the jury in at once acquitting M'Lean:—"Sir,—I find amongst the records of lunatic cases dealt with by me in the performance of my statutory duty under the Lunacy Acts, some particulars which, as relating to Roderick M'Lean, who attempted to shoot her Majesty, have an important bearing upon the investigation which must take place into his mental condition. In the month of June, 1874, information was given to me by an old gentleman—I believe a literary man—named M'Lean, that his son, Roderick Edward M'Lean, aged about 19 years, was a lunatic, and a person who ought to be under control. Mr. M'Lean gave me a detailed account of his son's behaviour, and assured me he went in fear of his life. The son was stated to be in the habit of secreting knives about him, and would hide in corners of the rooms and passages, as though meditating some crime. He used threats to his father that he would murder him, and he could not be induced to do anything in the way of work. He had had a similar attack about a year before, but although he had not altogether recovered, he had considerably improved until the latter attack in question came on. In company with a justice of the peace and a doctor, I saw him at home, but after a careful examination the doctor decided that he could not himself observe sufficient facts indicating insanity to justify him signing a certificate that Roderick Edward M'Lean was 'a lunatic and a proper person to be sent to an asylum.' In these circumstances no further action was taken under the Lunacy Acts, but I frequently saw the father, who informed me from time to time of the erratic conduct of his son. About two years after the date I have mentioned, I was informed by the father that his son was in custody at Maidstone, on a charge—to the best of my recollection—of attempting to upset a railway train, and I believe he was committed for trial, and ultimately handed over to his father, who was in attendance. The father died about four years ago, and the other members of the family are so dispersed that I have not been able to trace them. Of course, it may be that the man I had to deal with is not the same who is now in custody at Windsor, but should he prove to be the same individual, the above facts may be of use in furthering the ends of justice.—I am, &c., HENRY ESSEX, R.O., parish of Kensington, Guardians'-offices, Marloes-road, Kensington, March 3."

Fresh northerly wind was met with to Wilson's Promontory, and strong N.E. breezes, with heavy sea, from thence to arrival.

The Ringarooma (s.) left Auckland on April 18 at 5.20 p.m., arriving at Russell next morning at 7 a.m.; coaled, and proceeded at 6 p.m., passing the Three Kings next morning early, sighting Sydney Heads on the 24th at 3 a.m., passing in through the Heads at 6.20 a.m. Fine weather passage across up till 23rd, experienced then fresh N.E. breeze, with squalls of rain, accompanied by vivid flashes of lightning.

The New Zealand Herald of the 18th April states that the Patea (s.) was abandoned to the underwriters on the previous day. Captain Bendall arrived with appliances, and attempted to get her off by the evening tide, but she was hurled violently against the cliffs, a quantity of which fell upon her, and her hull being stoved in she filled with water and sand, the water running out and into the donkey-engine. There was a miraculous escape of its bursting. The Patea was insured for half her value, as follows:—Union, £1000; South British, £1000; Colonial, £500.

The Daily Chronicle prints an interesting table, showing the tonnage of shipping built in English yards for France during the year, and the total built for all foreign countries. The aggregate tonnage launched on foreign account during the year amounts to 294,000 tons, valued at £4,129,800. Of this amount France is credited with a tonnage of 64,435 tons, or just about a third of the whole, the remainder being evenly distributed between Germany, Holland, Spain, Italy, and other countries. The number of vessels launched for French owners was 42, of an average tonnage of 1534 tons; whilst other countries were credited with 198 vessels, of an average of 980 tons. We therefore see that the bounty system has given a decided impetus to ownership in France.

The barque Alpheta arrived yesterday from Hull with a cargo of steel rails for the Government. She left Hull on the 1st January last, and had strong westerly and south-west winds down the English Channel as far as the Start, after passing which 14 days were spent in beating about the Channel; thence had strong southerly and south-east winds, and had to stand on the port tack until the Western Islands were reached; passed between St. Mary's and Terceira; got the north-east trades in 30° and carried them to 2° N.; crossed the Equator on the 13th February, in longitude 26° W.; got the south-east trades in 1° S., and kept them to about 26° S., fine weather having been experienced throughout the trades; passed the Island of Trinidad on the 4th February; after losing the S.E. trades had moderate and light north and north-west winds, which continued until the Cape of Good Hope was passed on the 18th March, in lat. 41° S.; the easting was run down between the parallels of 45° and 46; on the 29th March a heavy gale sprang up from the westward, and continued till the 6th April, during which time the ship was pooped several times, the skylight smashed, and all movable gear on deck swept overboard; thence had strong westerly winds to Cape Otway, which was passed on the 17th instant; Cape Howe was passed on the 19th, and thence strong northerly winds till the afternoon of the 23rd when the wind increased very much in strength from the same quarter; there was a heavy sea, and the rain poured down in torrents; the lightning also was very vivid, and the thunder frequent and loud. The storm lasted for some hours, after which light northerly winds were experienced till arrival. The Alpheta is anchored off Bradley's Head. This is her first visit to Port Jackson. She is an iron barque, 810 tons register, and is owned by Johnston, Sprowle, and Co., of Liverpool. The Ethelbert, ship, bound from London to Sydney, was spoken on the 8th March, off Tristan d'Acunha, and the two ships kept company for 10 days. The Arvonia, also from London to Sydney, was spoken on 21st instant off Jervis Bay.

The Orient liner Cuzco left the Circular Quay at half-past 12 o'clock yesterday, en route to London via Melbourne and Adelaide. There was a large number of passengers, and the excitement usual at the departure of the boats of this line was very noticeable. It is expected that her passenger list will be quite full when she leaves the final port of departure. At Melbourne she will, in addition to other cargo, take on board 4000 carcases of sheep.

ARRIVAL OF THE DIAMOND.

H.M.S. Diamond, which comes to relieve the Emerald on the Australian station, arrived yesterday morning at 10 o'clock and anchored in Farm Cove. She left Sheerness on November 16, and Plymouth on December 5; arrived at Madeira December 16, and St. Vincent December 24. On January 20 the island of Tristan d'Acunha was sighted, and the vessel hove-to, having goods for delivery at the island. She steamed towards the shore and anchored within 1500 yards of the landing-place. On this little island, over which a party from the Diamond were shown by the Rev. Mr. Dodgson, chaplain of the community, there are no fewer than 105 souls, who are dependent solely on the trading done with whalers and vessels calling for provisions. A little trading was done with the inhabitants on reciprocal terms—the Diamond giving clothes, and gunpowder for blasting purposes, in exchange for beef and mutton for the use of the ship, which was supplied at 3d. or 4d. a lb. After a short stay here, the Diamond started again, and on February 11 called at Simons Bay, and on March 26 at Fremantle. She then proceeded to Albany on April 1; on leaving there was compelled to steam round to Adelaide for the most part in consequence of the prevalence of easterly winds. After a stay in Port Adelaide of a fortnight, the Diamond left for Sydney early on the morning of the 15th instant, and had calms until Cape Howe was reached; thence experienced a heavy northerly gale until the 23rd instant, when the wind fell light. Steam was then got up, and the ship arrived as stated. The Diamond is a wooden corvette, built at Sheerness, in September, 1874, and is now on her second commission. She is armed with 12 64-pounder shell guns, which are placed on the upper deck. These guns are intended primarily to be used against wooden ships, which they would destroy in a very short time, either by setting fire to them or tearing them to pieces. They are not adapted for penetrating armour, and therefore the Diamond could not meet an ironclad with any chance of success; but any craft similar to the Russian cruisers which recently paid us a visit would be very speedily torn to pieces by the shells. Another important feature, and a somewhat novel one in the armament of the navy, is the introduction of machine guns, of which the Diamond possesses four, two Nordenfeldts and two Gatlings. With these machine guns alone, very great damage can be done at a distance of fully 2000 yards, as they can pierce a wooden ship's side at that range with perfect ease. The Gatlings are put up into the "tops," so as to have a sweeping fire of the enemy's decks, while the Nordenfeldts are worked on platforms from amidships. With regard to torpedo armament, there is a full outfit of torpedo stores, and constant practice has been kept up both in the harbours called at which are not much frequented by shipping (such as Albany) and at sea. Two or three days' practice was gone through at Albany. The Diamond is supplied with the usual complement of boats in addition to a steam cutter, which is fitted to act as a torpedo boat in case of necessity, and her crew is made up as follows:—Officers, 23; petty officers, 45; seamen, 97; boys (1st and 2nd class), 32; marines, 36. Total, 233. The engines were built by Messrs. Hawthorne, and are direct acting surface condensing, having 94-inch cylinders and a stroke of 3 feet 9 inches. Steam is generated in six boilers carrying 12 furnaces, and the coal bunkers are sufficiently capacious to hold six and a-half days' fuel for steaming, enabling her to cover a distance of 900 miles without having the bunkers replenished. The Diamond steams at a rate of 12½ knots, and good speed can be got out of her in light winds, but she is not fast in a breeze. The following is a list of the officers:—Captain, Alfred T. Dale; lieutenants, Richard J. Symonds, G. M. Richardson, F. Elton, J. M. Stokes, W. H. Arnold; chaplain, Rev. W. E. Jackson, M.A.; staff-surgeon, Henry Beaumont; paymaster, F. L. M. Dwyer; chief engineer, Alexander Purvis; sub-lieutenant, R. C. Carew; surgeon, M. V. Stace; assistant paymaster, W. B. Auten; engineer, W. Ames; assistant engineer, Henry Wallis; gunner, Martin Kinnealiy; boatswains, George Botten, William Mahoney; carpenter, William Roulden; midshipmen, H. A. S. Ryler, E. M. Fetherstonhaugh, C. H. Askwith, E. H. Thruston, L. K. Power, S. Cleland, F. Hammond, R. Morris.

DEPARTURE OF THE EMERALD.

H.M.S. Emerald, which has formed one of the Australian Squadron during the past four years, left for England yesterday. Her departure was made the occasion of an interesting demonstration. Some time prior to the hour for hauling off from the buoys she was dressed with bunting, and the activity which prevailed on board betokened a speedy departure. At 20 minutes to 3 the whole of the crew manned the rigging, and At each masthead a man was stationed with a live cock in his right hand. The signal was then given to cast off from the moorings, which order was at once obeyed; and as the ship started on her homeward journey the men at the mast heads threw the cocks into the water, and their comrades in the rigging gave three lusty cheers for the Diamond, for the flagship (the Nelson), and for the rest of the fleet, including the Wolverene, a compliment which was warmly acknowledged. There was quite a fleet of small boats about, and considerable amusement was caused by endeavours, on the part of their occupants, to get the fowls. The Emerald will go round Cape Horn to England, and will probably call at Monte Video on her way to the home ports. She will be about three months on the voyage.

BASS' STRAITS LIGHTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The proposed light on Cliffy Island, N.E. of Wilson's Promontory, may serve coasters approaching Sealers' Cove or Corner Inlet, but the advantage of that site for the general navigation of the straits, either from the east or west of the promontory, cannot compare with that of the Forty-feet Rock, to the N.E. of Rodondo Island. A light on this rock might supersede that on the promontory, as from either the Schank or Gabo lights as points of departure it would be a clear guide past the Glennies or Moncur.

Yours obediently, CRAWFORD PASCO, R.N.

Sydney, 24th April, 1882.

The half-yearly meeting of the Waratah Coal Company was held to-day, Mr. W. G. Murray in the chair. The report showed income from coal sales, interest on money lent, earnings of steam collier, &c., £8203; previous balance, £8559; together, £16,562. Expenses of management had been £381; and mining charges, &c., £6023; leaving a balance of £10,559, which the directors proposed to apply—in writing off the book value of the mine an amount equal to the cost of the permanent works executed during the half-year, £1739; in paying a dividend of 2s. per share, £1000; leaving a balance to be carried forward of £7800. The report was unanimously adopted, and a vote of thanks passed to the directors and officers.

The half-yearly report of the South British Insurance Company, to the 28th February, shows an increase of £102,825, including £11,436, previous balance, and £85,883 from fire and marine premiums. On the other side the paid and outstanding losses were £37,912; and after providing for re-insurances and expenses, placing £10,000 to reserve, and paying a dividend of £5900, a balance of £8878 was carried forward.

In the Import markets to-day, business was restricted largely to trade lines, with a moderate amount of country trade. In the flour market business has been quiet, in sympathy apparently with the markets of the chief grain-producing colonies. Whatever the cause may be there has undoubtedly been a lull in the upward movement which has characterised the market since the discovery of the shortness of the crops, combined with the large engagements for Europe. We mentioned on Saturday that reports were current of six or eight cargoes having been cabled for to San Francisco, and we have since heard confirmation of these reports. There can be little doubt that some flour from that quarter will find its way to Australia; and the knowledge of that fact can hardly do otherwise than moderate the demands of the chief holders in these colonies. The higher the prices are forced up here, the larger the quantity of flour that is likely to be sent for, and, consequently, the greater the competition between importers of Californian and the holders of Australian flour in this market towards the close of the season. The miscalculation which has caused over shipments of our crops to Europe is a blunder which has caused serious unsettlement of prices and some derangement of the trade. The blunderers who made engagements in the first instance will be the main sufferers, but it is not to the general advantage that we should send so much of our wheat and flour 16,000 miles away to one market as to require to import to make up our deficiencies from another seven or eight thousand miles distant. To-day quotations were unaltered. In teas we hear of only trade business doing. Taylor's chocolate was done at 1s. 2d. In dried fruits, figs in large boxes were sold at 9d.; market for nearly all lines stagnant. Swiss milk (Dairymaid) was done at 7s. 4½d. Considerable business is noted in Nabob pickles and sauces, to arrive, stocks in hand being light. In liquors, large sales of Foster's beer and Tennent's stout are noted at agents' quotations; business in bottled beer generally continuing very active. In metals, a fair trade is noted in galvanized iron and building materials generally, without any noticeable change in value. In woolpacks, business was done in 11½-lb. at 3s. 3½d.; cornsacks, neglected, at 9s. There was a large supply of forage at the Darling Harbour produce sales this morning; the market was fairly attended; the prices obtained were lower than at last market. Oaten hay, in bales, realised from 9s. 8d. to 11s. 1d. per cwt.; in bundles, from 8s. 11d. to 10s. 11d.; in truss, from 9s. 8d. to 10s. 6d.; wheaten and oaten hay, in bales, 9s. 4d., in bundles, 11s. 1d.; straw, in bales, 5s. 6d. to 6s., in bundles, 5s. 9d. to 6s. 3d.; wheaten sheaves, 5s. 11d; hay and straw, in bales mixed, 7s. 4d.; oaten chaff, in bales, 10s. 4d. to 10s. 6d.; wheaten husks, 4s. 4d. to 5s.; pumpkins, 1s. 10d. to 4s. 6d. per dozen. At auction this morning on the wharf, lucerne hay of various qualities realized from £6 2s. 6d. to £7 per ton.

At the Homebush fat stock sales to-day 980 head of cattle were yarded. Prices were about the same as on Thursday, prime beef being worth 22s. per 100lb.; other qualities from 15s. 6050 sheep were penned, and prices were higher. The best lot of crossbred wethers, sold publicly, realized 10s. to 11s. 6d.

The Alpheta, from Hull, arrived to-day, with a cargo of steel rails.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

TUESDAY, APRIL 25, 1882.

It is satisfactory to find that the preparations for a larger dock at Cockatoo are in a forward state, because this dock will be an essential part of the equipment of Port Jackson. The existing dock at Cockatoo was designed when marine architecture was in a less forward state than it is now. Indeed, the original plans contemplated a much smaller excavation than exists at present, and it was a great effort of forecast, and achieved with some difficulty, to increase the proportions. Shipbuilding, however, has made great strides since then, and what was at one time thought to be a splendidly capacious dock is now too small to do what is required of it. The Duke of Edinburgh's frigate Galatea was docked and undocked with safety, but only at the top of spring tide. It is not every commander, however, who can wait for that, and where several vessels of a fleet all want to be examined, it is out of the question that they should all wait for a high tide. There have been several occasions in which foreign vessels which would have been docked could we have accommodated them, have had to go elsewhere.

It is not, however, merely the loss of maritime business that we have to think of. A more serious question is that a dock is an integral part of our naval defence. The presence of the Nelson in our waters has reminded us strikingly of our deficiency. Here is a vessel worth half a million of money, stationed here by the mother country for our defence, free of cost to ourselves, and we have no dock capable of taking her in. In fact, at the present moment she could not be docked anywhere in the Australian colonies. There is a dock at Hobson's Bay quite big enough to take her in if she could get there, but then she could not get up the South Channel. One colony has the harbour, the other colony has the dock, but at present neither of them has both. It is high time that each colony should make good its deficiency. Our neighbours have made up their minds to dredge that part of the channel which establishes the blockade, and till that is done, the Nelson cannot steam up to Williamstown. And our Government is making preparations to build a new and larger dock. There was a hesitation for some time as to whether the old dock should be enlarged or a new one constructed. The latter course has been wisely adopted. It will not cost appreciably more to make a new one than to enlarge the old one, and we shall not only have the use of the smaller dock while the larger one is making, but we shall have two docks instead of one.

It is impossible to overrate the importance of being able to repair a ship during war time. Naval warfare is in a state of transition, and it is impossible to say, in these days of torpedoes and ironclads, what may happen. The thing that is perfectly certain is, that if any damage is done to the vessel on which we principally rely, we ought to be in a position to effect repairs as promptly as possible. If the Nelson had to take shelter in Port Jackson, lamed, it would not do to have to wait for a spring tide before we could see to her injuries. Time is everything in war. If vessels of the Nelson class are what we want for our defence, then a dock fit to take in such a ship at an hour's notice is also a necessary part of the equipment of our port.

Now that the scheme has been resolved upon, it should be pushed through with as little delay as possible. If it were not that delay is dangerous, it would have been a fair question to consider whether, at so isolated a spot as Cockatoo, prison labour might not have been advantageously employed. But convict work is slow, even where it is economical. As we are already behindhand, it is not expedient to lose any more time. It is still expedient, however, to consider, in connection with our defences, whether some part of our prison labour might not be utilized in improving the fortress at South Head. That is really the key of our whole position. It commands the entrance to the port, and will be the first to receive the brunt of any fire; and it also commands the inner port more than any other headland. It ought to be made unattackable by land, and, in fact, might by degrees be turned into a miniature Gibraltar. The kind of work necessary for this purpose might be carried out gradually by prison labour, and would be a very suitable purpose to which to devote it.

The elaborate report published by the Dublin Mansion House Relief Committee respecting the Irish crisis of 1879-80 contains much valuable information on the social and industrial condition of Ireland, in addition to its special account of the administration of the funds entrusted to the committee by sympathetic contributors in the colonies and foreign countries. The latter part of the report is thorough and complete. The total receipts for purposes of relief amounted to £181,665, to which Australasia contributed £94,917, or more than half the whole. Victoria is credited with £31,315, and New South Wales with £28,000, proportions which represent an average contribution of 4s. from every family in New South Wales, and 3s. 10d. from every family in Victoria, a substantial proof of sympathy for our distressed Irish fellow-subjects. A similar contribution levied throughout the United Kingdom would produce about two millions sterling—a small sum compared with the wealth of the country and the yield of taxation, but a large result from a single act of spontaneous private beneficence.

The cost of collecting and distributing these funds, so far as that is reported by the Mansion House Committee, was £7826, which is about 4½ per cent. on the total contributions. It includes salaries, cost of carriage, telegrams, postage, printing and advertising, and office rent. The relief ordinarily afforded through the Poor Law machinery is much more costly than that, although, being systematic and continuous, it ought to be economical. The poor rates levied in Ireland for the year 1880 amounted to £929,907, and the number of paupers relieved was 549,874, besides the special action of the Government in establishing relief works. In England and Wales the county poor rates levied for the same year amounted to £13,033,665, and the number of paupers was 809,341. It follows that for this particular year, which is the one dealt with by the Dublin Committee in its report, Ireland had one pauper for every 9½ inhabitants, and raised a poor rate equal to 3s. 7½d. per head of her people, while England and Wales had one pauper for every 32 inhabitants, with a poor rate equal to 10s. 0½d. per head. Thus Ireland had relatively more than three times as many paupers as England and Wales, with a relief rate equal to only about one-third that of England and Wales. These facts are not given by the committee, but we supply them as a kind of cross test as to the reality of Irish distress. The English Poor Law relief for the year was equal to £16 2s. 1d. for each pauper, and the Irish relief to only £1 14s. for each pauper. In England other things besides the relief of paupers are thrown upon the poor rate; but still the difference between the two countries is evidence of the comparative indigence of the smaller island, and, consequently, of its greater exposure to the pressure of hard times. The total yield of the rate for England and Wales was about one-twelfth of the gross rental the taxable property was assessed at, and in Ireland about one-fifteenth. In fact, a single year's yield of the poor rate for England and Wales would buy up the whole rental of Ireland at its present declared valuation.

The relief funds sent from abroad to the Dublin Mansion House Committee were distributed by 745 local committees, which consisted of 9895 members, of whom 1408 were Roman Catholic clergymen, 835 Protestant clergymen, and 7656 laymen whose religion is not defined. In some quarters complaints were made of religious favouritism in the administration of relief, very similar to those of the Grecian against the Hebrew Christians at Jerusalem, who murmured that "their widows were neglected in the daily ministrations." The committee investigated the matter and publish evidence to prove the complaints groundless. Certainly the constitution of the local committees seems fair enough in this respect, and the funds appear to have been distributed equitably among the different provinces in proportion to the distress found to exist. The number who received relief was 512,325; but as the total funds available for distribution, less expense, was only £173,830, the average share of each person was 6s. 9½d., or about one-fifth the average relief from poor rates for a larger number of sufferers. Still a subvention like that, coming from private charity in a time of famine, must have had an effect far beyond its actual amount.

Perhaps the most valuable part of the report is that which investigates the causes of the distress. These are declared to be the succession of three bad harvests, the loss of stock in consequence of those bad harvests, and the depreciation of Irish produce from the effects of American competition. Official reports are quoted in support of these statements. Summarizing them, we notice that the potato-crops of the three years 1874-5-6 weighed 11,210,273 tons, valued at £33,657,849; but for the three following years they fell to a weight of 5,397,155 tons, worth only £16,192,362. Similarly the wheat crops fell from a value of £3,613,018 to £3,003,857, and oats from £22,519,420 to £20,060,535. Here is a loss of nearly twenty millions sterling in three years upon three crops alone—seven-eighths of it on the single article of potatoes, which seem to be still the staple food of the Irish people, in spite of the terrible lesson of the famine of 1845. That speaks volumes as to the backward state of Irish agriculture. In regard to the depreciation of live stock no data are supplied sufficient for a proper test, but the committee estimate the loss to Irish producers for 1879 alone at not less than £15,000,000. Putting all these losses together, they actually amount, for the three years of scarcity, to five or six times the annual value of the whole 20,815,111 acres, and all the buildings upon them, which constitute the ratable freeholds of Ireland. The average rent for land before the Land Courts began their operations was only 10s. 2d. per acre per annum, and now it must have fallen to about 7s. per acre. At three per cent. interest, that makes the whole soil of Ireland worth £245,000,000, and therefore the losses reported by the Dublin committee for the three bad years are equal to one-fourth the value of the whole fee simple of the island.

The cure for this condition of periodical distress is not to be found merely in emigration. At present there must be ten million people of Irish extraction resident in the United States, and their competition in meat and agricultural produce has been the principal cause, next to bad harvests, of the recent distress. Nor have Irish producers alone felt the strain. The farmers of England and Scotland have suffered equally, only they had saved something from former produce to help them through the time of trial. It is the manufacturing industries of England which have enabled her to weather the storm with such comparative ease. Irelandhas no such resource to fall back upon. A recent report revealed that she possessed only eight cotton factories, sixty woollen mills, one worsted, four hemp, eleven jute, two silk, and 149 flax factories, or a total of 235 factories, employing 67,744 hands, of both sexes and all ages, out of a population of nearly five and a quarter millions. Scotland had more than twice as many factory hands for a population of three and three-quarter millions, and England and Wales eleven times as many for a population of 26 millions. But even to this manufacturing competition there must be a limit. Man's command of natural forces is ever increasing, and, consequently, his power of production is increasing so that, in time, he would be able to fill the world with manufactures if that were the chief object of human life. As long as new lands remain open, the forces battle will go on, and the tides of commerce will ebb and flow among different nations in the future as in the past. But in the end the various countries will find their equilibrium, each producing what it is best adapted for, and freely exchanging its produce with all the rest; while the excessive increase of population will be kept in check by prudence, self-restraint, and the natural adaptation of humanity to the necessary conditions of its existence.

Dr. VAUGHAN had no difficulty in showing that the Christian Church existed before the New Testament. He might as easily have shown a similar thing with respect to the Jewish Church, which existed before the Old Testament; and so, too, with respect to all the great religions of the world. It is not a very wonderful thing that a great social movement should take place before the record of it comes into being. In the order of nature consequences generally come after causes. The pious monk who, in his nightly orisons, thanked God for placing large rivers near large towns, was not less philosophical than the bishop who feels thankful that the Church existed before the Bible. But the really great question with which Dr. VAUGHAN was concerned, was not to show that the written tradition came after the oral tradition, or rather came after the facts and the sayings that had to be handed down, but whether the free distribution of the Bible amongst the laity has been a good or a bad thing. If this complete trusting of the Bible to the laity has been a good thing, then Protestantism has been an enormous blessing to mankind; if the Bible has done harm, then Protestantism, which has been the real force that has promoted the circulation of the Book, has done in this respect incalculable mischief. There is no disputing the fact, the world owes the distribution of the Bible in the vulgar tongues to Protestantism. It is not much to say that there was a German translation before the time of LUTHER. The question for the historical critic to answer is, was there a popular distribution of the Bible before LUTHER, or did he, by his life and works, make an enormous difference in this respect? People reasoned inductively, as MACAULAY says, before the time of BACON, but did not BACON put the system of inductive philosophy on a new footing, and make a new departure in the methods of studying the problems of nature? It is not too much to say that the free study of the Bible has made nations, has moulded political constitutions, has been at the bottom of the great forward movement of our times in material civilization, and has inspired the greatest social amelioratio.as of our times. We cannot get rid of the solid facts of history by any ingenious logical finesse; nor ought we, by any similar process, to minify our estimate of them. It is nothing to the purpose to say that some persons have wrested the Scriptures to their own injury; they did so before the canon was complete, they do so still; but is the harm thus done comparable to the good that has been lost by checking the free study of the Bible by the people?

The weather news published in the telegrams yesterday and to-day is encouraging in a high degree. The late rains, although copious and extensive, had left large tracts of country untouched, but these at last have been visited by refreshing showers, and in some cases by a heavy downpour. General rain is reported both in Victoria and South Australia, and in our own colony there has been a fall at Barringun, Bourke, Cobar, Cunnamulla, Hay, Nimmagee, Temora, Tumut, Wilcannia, and other places in the west, whilst there have been promising appearances at Walgett. The value of this change in the weather of our dry western country will hardly be over estimated. It comes late, but not too late to make the difference between the loss and the preservation of a very large amount of pastoral property. The heat of the sun and the soil has not yet passed away; and the growth of pasture and herbage will therefore be rapid. It may not be too much to hope that such a supply of winter feed has been secured as will greatly lessen the losses from starvation in the dry country, that had previously appeared imminent. Much more rain, however, is probably required to provide stores of water in the reservoirs; but that want may be supplied hereafter. The great study has been to have rain enough to give a start to vegetation before the setting-in of winter rendered such an effect hopeless. It is expected that this welcome change has come in time to check excessive mortality at the lambing in many places, although in dry country, where the lambing had begun previously, the benefit will not be felt. It should not be forgotten that, whatever energy may be expended in the conservation of water, there will still be a dependence upon timely rains for the renewal of the supply of that natural food which is no less essential than water for the support of live stock.

A correspondent in Saturday's issue pointed to the efforts now being made in England to find some substitute for horse power upon the city trams, and quoted some valuable facts with regard to trials already made. It is well that the interest of the public and the attention of the Government should be fixed upon these experiments, which must be regarded as amongst the most important of the age. Tramways in Sydney have become necessities of our daily life. As every other innovation they have caused some annoyance, and in certain cases positive loss that seems almost like injustice or oppression, but their use has been so generally acknowledged that an attempt at their expulsion from the city would be regarded with scarcely less aversion than a proposal to tear up the great trunk railways of the Continent. The tramways put down will never be displaced unless for renewal or repair, and the horses that have been put off the streets will be kept off, so far as passenger traffic is concerned, to their own great comfort as much as to the convenience and health of mankind. Very few people have held it possible to work the tramway system of Sydney by horse power, but many men of international experience, or tolerably wide thought, have held that much unnecessary annoyance and danger is caused by the present serviceable, but clumsy and ill-contrived, motors. They are, indeed, very similar to the "noisy, clanking, snorting locomotives" which in Paris ply from Courbevrie past the Arc l'Etoile, on the northern tramways, and of which the Pall Mall Gazette observed, "Anyone who introduced such motors in this country would deserve summary execution, without the benefit of clergy." At least as much has been said of our own motors, but it is much easier to coin smart terms of abuse than to remedy defects in useful appliances. Our motors, at the time of their adoption, were the best available implements for the work that required to be done; but rapid improvements are amongst the characteristics of the age, and it is not reasonable that the motor of 1878 should be regarded as perfectly satisfactory in 1882. All the great cities of the world are looking and working towards their improvement, and if Sydney does not care to join the task of inventing, she should, at least, be prepared to take early advantage of the successful inventions of others.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE members of the Canadian House of Commons evidently feel a sympathetic interest in the aims and movements of the revolutionary party in Ireland. They have adopted a memorial to the Queen, asking her to grant Ireland autonomous government, similar to that enjoyed by the Dominion, and to pardon and release the political prisoners now in gaol. The Constitution of the Dominion is similar in principle to that of the United Kingdom; the executive authority is vested in the Sovereign of Great Britain and Ireland, and carried on in her name by a Governor-General and Privy Council; and the legislative power is exercised by a Parliament of two Houses, called the Senate and the House of Commons. The granting of such a Constitution to Ireland would no doubt be very acceptable to the Home Rulers; but the Canadian appeal will probably not have much effect on the British Government. The expression of opinion on the part of the Canadian House of Commons may not, however, be entirely harmless. It will have a tendency to encourage the Irish malcontents in their persistent, but as yet fruitless and disastrous, efforts to obtain self-government.

REGARDING the state of Ireland, our cablegrams do not report much improvement. There has been a severe fight between 200 men of the notorious Moonlight gang and the police, in the county Kerry. The police gained the day, wounding and capturing from 15 to 20 of the marauders.

MR. PARNELL has surrendered to his parole, and is again lodged in Kilmainham Gaol. The period of his parole covered a fortnight during the greater part of which time he was in Paris. His chief object in going there was to attend the funeral of a relative. Whilst out of gaol he resolutely refused to be interviewed either by pressmen or other persons. Rumours were at one time current that he had been shot, but they proved to be unfounded.

THE North Borneo Colonization Company, to whom the British Government a short time back granted a charter of incorporation, has issued a prospectus of operations, the capital being £2,500,000. Our London correspondent explained in one of his letters recently published in the Herald how the matter had been brought about. Mr. Dent a well-known Chinese merchant, received a conces-ion from the Sultan of Brunei, the Sultan of Sooloo, and the Sultan of Tumongong, amounting to absolute sovereignty. He subsequently transferred his rights to a company which included such a distinguished name as that of Sir Rutherford Alcock, and these people are the real rulers of a great part of North Borneo. The British Government endorsed their possession by a charter which recognises the company's rights, gives them a flag, and treats their possessions, our correspondent said, as though they were a colonial State.

THOSE who are interested in the Australian meat trade with England will be glad to learn that the Garonne's meat cargo has arrived at the London docks in splendid condition. If the shippers profited by the results of previous shipments, we may expect to hear that more favourable prices are being realized by the sale of the Garonne's meat.

MISCELLANEOUS items by cablegram announce the release from gaol of the Assistant Secretary of the Irish National Land League who was imprisoned as a suspect; a cessation of the anti-Irish riots in Cornwall; and the arrival of the Australian sculler Laycock at Putney. The sculling match between Trickett and Hanlan is causing much interest, and is regarded as almost a certainty for Hanlan. Our cablegrams also state that great reductions in the Indian army are contemplated, and that the remains of the late Dr. Darwin will be interred in Westminster Abbey on Wednesday.

H.M.S. DIAMOND, a new steam corvette, which comes to relieve the Emerald on the Australian station, arrived early yesterday morning, and dropped anchor in Farm Cove. She left Sheerness on November 10, making a considerable number of calls on the way out. The Diamond has a total complement of 233 officers, seamen, and marines, and carries a substantial armament. The Emerald made immediate preparations for her homeward voyage, and shortly before 3 left her moorings amid loud cheering, and steamed away from her rendezvous for the past four years for England, via Cape Horn.

SIR THOMAS ERSKINE PERRY, whose death is announced by cable this morning, was son of the late Thomas Perry, proprietor of the Morning Chronicle. According to "Men of the Time" he was born in 1806, and was educated at the Charter-House and at Trin. Coll., Cambridge, where he graduated B.A. in 1829. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple, and in 1847 was appointed Chief Justice at Bombay. This post he resigned in 1852, and returning to England, he sat in Parliament from 1851 to 1859 as M.P. for Devonport, in the Liberal interest; but accepted the Chiltern Hundreds in the latter year, on becoming a member of her Majesty's Indian Council.

THE R. M. S. Carthage, with the English mails, via Suez, to March 24, is due at King George's Sound to-morrow evening.

HIS Excellency the Governor, Lord Augustus Loftus, will return to Sydney from the Blue Mountains to-day.

ONE result of the continued dry weather in the Western district has been to check the carriage of goods through the scarcity of water and feed for teams. The news published yesterday, however, that rain had fallen in portions of the Western district will be received with satisfaction by all who are interested in matters connected with that part of the colony. In regard to the difficulty of getting teams to carry goods, we have been requested by the Commissioner for Railways to draw the attention of persons sending goods by rail via Dubbo to the fact that the railway station at Dubbo is rapidly becoming blocked by goods awaiting transit. The Commissioner states that so long as the Department can afford accommodation without interfering with the receipt of fresh traffic no storage charges will be enforced, but in the event of the room being required storage will be charged on the goods which have been longest in store. It is probable, however, that in any case one month's free storage will be allowed.

WE are informed that the railway is within 30 miles of the town of Hay, on the Murrumbidgee, and that the line will be opened to Hay in the early part of next July. It will be interesting to woolgrowers in the Riverina district to learn that carriage of wool from Hay to Sydney will, when the railway reaches there, be at the rate of 12s. a bale. The distance between Hay and Sydney is 455 miles, and the rate of 12s. is much below the ordinary one; but the reduction is required in consequence of the necessity of competing on equal terms with other means of carriage. As to the policy of differential rates in the carriage of wool, it is considered that any reduction recoups itself in the amount of business which the reduced charges bring to the railway.

A MEMORIAL was prepared about two months ago for presentation to the Minister of Public Works, New South Wales (the Argus states), pointing out that sufficient time was not allowed for passengers from Melbourne going overland to Sydney to have lunch at Albury, and that the hurry now caused frequently resulted in luggage being lost. It was urged that the train should be made to leave Albury at half-past 3 p.m. (Sydney time) instead of as at present at 3 o'clock. We learn from our Albury correspondent that a reply to the memorial has now been received to the effect that the request cannot be entertained by the Railway Department.

IN another column we publish the first of a series of articles on "Old and New Sydney," showing the extraordinary progress which has been made by Sydney since the date of its incorporation, and the rapid rise of the municipalities which have sprung up on the borders of the city. Some of the descriptions of Sydney as it appeared 10 years ago read very curiously now, particularly the references to the houses in Woolloomooloo standing "in gardens and pleasure grounds;" the practice of punishing offenders by confinement in the stocks, situated in a street next the Police Office; "the windmills crowning the heights of Woolloomooloo;" the desolate appearance of Hyde Park, which was "merely a fenced common, without a tree or blade of grass," and other notable features in the then city of Sydney. One of the most striking points in the comparison is the difference in the financial position of our civic rulers, whose total income for city purposes in 1843 was only equal to last year's municipal revenue in Balmain. One of the items in these old accounts is an award of £80 in 1843 for plans for a Town Hall.

A PUBLIC meeting, called for the purpose of presenting to the subscribers a statement of the receipts and expenditure connected with the Bulletin libel fund, was held in the Masonic Hall last evening. The attendance was large, and the meeting very unanimous. Mr. Archibald was absent through illness, but Mr. Haynes was present and addressed the meeting. A statement of accounts was submitted, and it was resolved that any surplus that remained, after all claims were paid and provision was made to meet necessary expenses connected with efforts to reform the libel law, should be handed to Messrs. Haynes and Archibald.

A WELL-ATTENDED preliminary meeting of the members of the microscopical section of the Royal Society was held in the society's rooms last evening. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. It was decided to hold the meetings of the section on the evenings of the second Monday in each month. A ballot was then taken for the election of officers for the current session, with the following result:—Chairman, Dr. Wright; secretary, Mr. P. R. Pedley; committee Messrs. F. B. Kyngdon, G. D. Hirst, H. O. Walker, and Dr. Ewan.

A WELL-ATTENDED meeting of the Drapers' Association was held last night at the Coffee Tavern, Pitt-street, Mr. Mason in the chair. The principal business was the consideration of the rules as prepared by the sub-committee. These were severally submitted, and severely criticised; but after slight verbal alterations Nos. 1 to 8 were adopted. The remaining clauses will be considered at the next meeting, to be held on Wednesday.

THE annual general meeting of the Church of England Sunday School Institute was held last evening, in St. James' Schoolroom, the Rev. the Vicar-General in the chair. A satisfactory report was presented and adopted, and it appeared from the financial statement that there was a small balance to the credit of the institute. After electing office-bearers the meeting closed.

AT the monthly meeting of the Anglo-Israel Association of New South Wales held last night in the new Temperance Hall, Pitt-street, the Rev. W. Allworth, the president, read a paper intituled, "It is true," published in England by Dr. Grant, of the city of Colchester, in reply to the adverse pamphlet by the Rev. Canon Bell, D.D., of the same city, intituled, "Is Anglo-Israelism true or false?" The audience was, as usual, both numerous and respectable, and received with evident satisfaction, and occasional outbursts of "Hear, hear," the sentiments and views of the pamphleteer. The meeting was closed, as it was opened, with prayer.

THE report presented at the annual meeting of the Bathurst Church Society, among other things, says:—"The committee are obliged to draw attention to the very small amount of support given to the society by the large and wealthy parishes in the remote west. It is true that grants are seldom made to these parishes, but the item for travelling expenses to such distant places is generally a large one (to say nothing of the cost of college training), and should be gratefully remembered. While a clergyman is in a parish where no grant is needed, he seems unable to appreciate the real worth of the society. When, however, he is removed to a poorer locality, he realises that, humanly speaking, the Church Society is essential to the success of Church work in these western districts. It cannot be disputed that the aid which a parish renders to the society depends, not upon the wealth of the people or upon the absence of parochial debt, but upon the favour with which the incumbent regards the society and his willingness to advocate its claims. There are now thirty clergymen at work in the diocese, eleven of whom, together with the four catechists, receive aid directly from the society."

A NUMBER of the visiting representatives to the Presbyterian Intercolonial Conference proceeded to Lithgow by train yesterday, and are to return to the metropolis this evening. To-morrow the visitors are to take a trip by steamer to the River Hawkesbury, returning in the evening.

THE good work performed by Mr. J. S. Shearston, seamen's missionary, among the seamen and marines of H.M. ships on the Australian station was brought under the notice of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty by Rear-Admiral Wilson, late Commodore of the Australian station. Through Commodore Erskine, the Lords Commissioners have forwarded to Mr. Shearston the following letter of thanks:—"Admiralty, 7th March, 1882. Sir,—Rear-Admiral Wilson, late Commodore on the Australian station, having brought to the notice of my Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty the good work which you have so long been carrying on amongst the seamen and marines of her Majesty's ships on that station, I am commanded by their Lordships to acquaint you that they have been much gratified by this communication; and I am to express to you their thanks for the devotion which you have shown to the interests of the men, and for the services which you have thus rendered to the Navy in the prevention of desertion and other offences against naval discipline. I am, sir, your obedient servant, ROBERT HALL. J. S. Shearston, Esq., Sydney." Commodore Erskine, in communicating this letter to Mr. Shearston, expresses his high appreciation of that gentleman's energy and zeal, and of the kindly interest which he took in all that concerns the welfare of the men under his command.

THE sixth of the series of popular lantern readings in connection with the Technical College was given in the large hall of the School of Arts on Saturday last, in the presence of a very large audience. Before commencing the "Explorations and Discoveries of Captain Nares in the Arctic Seas," the lecturer impressed his hearers with the advantages to be obtained by attending the classes of the Technical College, and drew attention to the great value of the certificates awarded to successful students. The first scenes introduced were, the fitting out and departure of the Alert and Discovery from Portsmouth Harbour, a life-like portrait of Captain Nares, and a representation of the huge crowd assembled to bid the voyagers farewell. Then, in a clear and impressive manner, the lecturer described the habits of the Esquimaux, the many and various perils of the British seamen, the heroic journey of Lieutenant Parr, the sea of ancient ice, until the safe return of the two ships to old England. In conclusion the lecturer remarked that if they had not yet learned the way to the North Pole, they had at any rate found out for certain what was not the way—they had demonstrated the "open Polar Sea" to be a myth; they had shown the "Smith Sound route," affording no continuous land to the northward, was not the route by which the highest latitudes would ultimately be gained; and they had traced the real difficulty of Arctic exploration to its true and final source, and proved that until some way could be discovered which would open out a totally different description of ice from that encountered by the expedition north of latitude 83°, no amount of strength or skill or daring would suffice to overpass the barriers set up around the Pole. The lecturer was listened to with great attention, and was much applauded.

AN American gentleman, Mr. Oliver Cook, of Darien, Connecticut, has recently patented an invention which may some day be worth a trial. This is an improvement in lighthouse lanterns, and the advantage claimed for it is, that by throwing the light upwards, against the clouds, the light is so reflected by the clouds as to be seen at a much greater distance than is possible when the light is thrown from the lantern in a horizontal direction, thus enabling ships coming into harbour in dangerous weather to get their bearings considerably sooner than they can by the aid of the ordinary horizontal light. Mr. Cook's lantern is provided with a glass dome or cover, and a horizontal concave ring reflector in a gimbal, provided with clamping screw pivots to hold it in any desired position. The tower of the lighthouse is constructed in the ordinary manner, and supports the lantern, the sides of which are entirely of glass, secured to a frame attached to the top of the tower. The summit of the lantern, or lamp chamber, is arched in the form of a dome, and supported by the lantern frame. The dome can be made in one piece or in sections, as may be desired. The lamp is of the ordinary description, the reflector being a circular concave disc with a hole in the centre, through which the flame of the lamp projects. The pivots of the gimbal are screws, by means of which the reflector can be so adjusted as to throw the light vertically or in any inclination that may be desired—dependent on the state of the air. The gas from the lantern escapes by two or more elbow pipes, the lower arms of which incline slightly downward, so that any rain that may fall into their upper ends is prevented from flowing into the lantern and made to escape through small tubes connected with the pipes at their angles. Combustion in the lantern is supported by air passing through openings in the bottom. The light can be made to flash, or can be coloured to distinguish it from other lights. The inventor states that the idea of this improvement occurred to him on observing from a distance of 50 miles from New York the reflection of the lights of that city in the clouds.

CAPTAIN MOORE, late of the Sydney Insurance Brigade, arrived in Adelaide on Monday week, and inspected the Adelaide Fire Brigade on the 20th instant. He writes to Superintendent-General Kelly, of Sydney, as follows:—"The brigade, though small in number, are under very strict orders and drill well; the water supply is good, and the police act in organization with the firemen."

THE flower and plant stealers are again at work in Hyde Park. Between the night of the 22nd and the morning of the 24th instant, a number of flowers were stolen and some destroyed in the plantations.

AN inquest was held at the Daniel Lambert Hotel, on Saturday afternoon, concerning the death of a man named William Clement Fowler, who was killed on Friday in a brickyard at Leichhardt through a quantity of clay falling on him. The evidence was to the effect that Fowler was engaged in tunnelling at the works, when about two tons of clay fell on him, burying him up to his neck. He was got out as quickly as possible, and taken home in a cart belonging to his employer, Mr. Cutts, but died about 20 minutes after he reached his home. There was no blame attached to any one in the matter, and the jury therefore returned a verdict of death from injuries accidentally received.

A MAN named John M'Guan has been twice placed on his trial at the Armidale Assizes on the charge of murdering one Thomas Smith, and on both occasions the jury were discharged, as they could not agree, and M'Guan now stands remanded for trial next October for a third time. The circumstances of the case are as follows:—Smith who was murdered was a very eccentric old man, and was a shoemaker, who lived alone, near Inverell. In order to get into the house the doors had to be broken in when Smith's dead body was found on the floor. The body was examined, when it was found that his throat was cut and he had a fracture in the skull either of which wounds would have caused death. It appears that M'Guan frequently spoke about the deceased having plenty of money, and before the murder took place prisoner said if he had a mate he could get plenty of money. Inspector Harrison arrested prisoner on the Bundarra-road on a charge of murdering Thomas Smith. When arrested, a hammer was found in prisoner's dray with some blood on, and when the inspector asked him how the blood stains got on the handle of the hammer, he replied that while making some green-hide hopples he cut his finger, and in using the hammer to stretch the hopples the blood got on the handle. Dr. Segel's evidence shows that the head of the hammer exactly fitted the wound in the murdered man's head.

ABOUT 5 o'clock last evening, a horse attached to a van, the property of Mr. J. S. Johnston, Selwyn-street, Moore Park, driven by A. Pretty, became uncontrollable and bolted when in Druitt-street, and came in contact with cab No. 340, driven and owned by R. Murphy. The result in this case was a broken cab axle. After colliding with this cab, the runaway came into collision with cab 491, owned by R. Shaw, and driven by John Mahon, and this time broke a window and panel of the cab, as well as bending the axle. The runaway horse was then pulled up.

AN accident of a very unpleasant and rather serious nature occurred to a young lady who was landing from one of the Parramatta River steamers, at the foot of King-street, a few days ago. Two steamers were at the wharf together, and there was, consequently, not sufficient room to land the passengers either comfortably or with safety. The bow of the steamer in question reached the end of the wharf, and a plank was placed from the steamer to the platform, but was not very firmly fixed. Several persons managed to cross the plank, but one unfortunate young lady lost her balance, and fell into the water. Some boys in a boat close by rescued her, but not until she had sunk once or twice. She was ultimately got on shore in an unconscious state. A passenger who witnessed the mishap complains very much of the neglect of the steamer company in not providing a proper landing-place for passengers, or at any rate in not having a proper bridgeway.

THE following is the report of the Sydney Hospital for the week ended 22nd April, 1882:—Admitted, 53 males, 19 females: total, 72. Discharged, 38 males, 12 females: total, 50. Died, 4 males, 2 females: total, 6. Remaining, 156 males, 62 females: total, 218.

THE inviolability of telegrams received somewhat of a shock lately in the English Divorce Court, when a representative of the Postmaster-General declined to produce an original telegram on the ground that it was regarded as a "private document." Precisely because it was a private document, and therefore not within the exception of papers whose disclosure would prejudice the public service, the judge ordered it to be produced. There is no doubt about the law (observes a London paper), but the opinion of the Post Office as to the sacro-sanctity of telegrams is probably shared by the general public, who think that a telegram ought to be as safe and secret a means of communication as a letter. This cannot be the case so long as the Post Office keeps the originals and is liable at any moment to be compelled to produce them. A letter passes through the post without leaving any traces behind it, and if telegrams are to be made as safe in this respect as letters, the originals must either be destroyed or made unavailable in evidence.

THE Cootamundra Herald is informed that a lady in Temora, whilst walking about the yard with her children last Tuesday morning, noticed something like a bright pebble on the ground, and on picking it up was agreeably surprised to discover that it was a fine nugget of gold, weighing about an ounce and a quarter.

IN these days of clubs (observes the Pall Mall Gazette), for all objects and among all sorts and conditions of men, it is not wonderful that the law courts should have frequent occasion to discuss the rules and principles of law under which they exist. The liabilities of committees of clubs has received a further elucidation. A butcher brought an action against the committee of the Portland Club for meat supplied for the use of the members. In an ordinary case the committee or such of them as authorized the particular order would have been liable. The members clearly could not be, for, having paid once for their dinners, they could not be expected to pay again. But, as it turned out in the present case, the steward acted as "manciple"—that is, he provided food at a fixed tariff at his own risk, making what profit he could out of it, and as it was also proved that the plaintiff had lent the steward £20 to cash members' cheques with, it was clear that he had trusted the steward and not the committee. The steward having absconded, the plaintiff therefore has lost his money and his case.

MADAME DE NOVIKOFF, the well-known Russian lady who writes under the initials "O. K.," in referring to the persecution of the Jews in Russia in a recent letter to the Times, remarks:—"An Anglo-Indian member of Parliament, of great eminence as an administrator in Bengal, was kind enough to lend me the other day an interesting Blue-book on the riots in the Deccan, from which I learn that the most innocent agriculturists in India, in Santalistan, and in the Deccan have repeatedly attacked the Hindoo money-lenders exactly as our peasants attacked our Jews, and for the same reason. And how did you deal with this difficulty? Not by increasing the license, but by restricting the opportunities of the Hindoo money-lenders; and as you do it with some success, your example can be useful indeed. In short, you do as General Ignatieff proposed to do in his famous rescript, which you abuse so much. You seek to remove the cause of the disorder by protecting the peasants against the extortionate practices of the village usurers. If we are wrong, is it not a case of the mote and the beam?"

RESPECTING the use of false labels the Argus says:—"It seems that it is a common practice not only to sell crude spirits of local manufacture as imported liquor of superior quality, but to palm off inferior Victorian wine as the best French claret. On Friday last a wine and tobacco merchant named Adam Holbing, carrying on business at Stawell, was charged at the Ballarat City Police Court with having caused to be counterfeited and forged the trade marks employed to distinguish the wines known as V.D., or Vergniaud, claret, and Bordeaux claret No. 0. Evidence was given to prove that the defendant had placed upon bottles containing inferior colonial wine, colourable imitations of the labels in question. The wine, according to one of the witnesses, was hardly fit to drink, whereas the beverage it was represented to be is of choice quality, and is worth in the market from 80s. to 90s. per dozen. A more audacious fraud could scarcely be imagined, and the police magistrate who heard the case marked his sense of the gravity of the offence by fining the defendant £50, with £21 costs; in default, three months' imprisonment. The infliction of a few more penalties like this would have a salutary effect, and from the vigour with which the excise officers are going to work, we may expect shortly to hear of successful prosecutions in other parts of the colony."

IT appears there is a coursing cat at Jindera, as the correspondent of the Albury Banner states: "On Monday last, in the course of a walk through my vineyard, my attention was attracted by a scuffling among the vines, and on looking to ascertain the cause, found our cat was chasing a hare. The hare doubled and raced for its life, but the cat was equal to the emergency, and succeeded in turning its quarry every time, until at length the hare was finally captured, when I secured it and carried off the prize."

Protection in the United States.—Bradstreet's is a journal by no means violently free trade in its tendency, but its conductors have sense enough to see that the existing system of taxation in the United States is too absurd to be maintained long in its present shape. The "tax upon trade," the paper says, "is burdensome" and unevenly distributed. Objects of taxation are badly chosen. A great deal is heard of surplus revenue, but it is not the protected industries that produce these surpluses. The protected industries do not contribute more than 10 per cent. of the total exports of the country. Many duties, on the other hand, are either prohibitory or yield so little as not to be worth the cost of collection. They are merely arbitrary clogs upon trade which can do good to no mortal, least of all to the State. In a list which the writer of the paper gives we find such articles as buckwheat with a 10 per cent. duty, yielding 874 dollars per annum. Sago yields only 12 dollars, and rye flour only 11 dollars. Cocoa in all forms but 1500 dollars, and so on. Did we forget that 40 years ago our own tariff was just as full of absurdities, the examination of such a list might almost secure assent to the dictum of a disgusted person whom we lately heard declare the people of the United States to be, "with all their bounce and brag, the most ignorant and conceited creatures on the face of the earth." That is not true, but neither is it wholly false.—Pall Mall Gazette.

The following intelligence from a Russian source has been received by an indirect route from Charbarowka (?):—"In the Chinese frontier territory which has come into the possession of Russia in virtue of the last Russo-Chinese treaty, an active propaganda is being carried on by the Chinese officials among the Mantchus and Chinamen engaged in agriculture there and further in the interior of Russia. These officials are persuading the Mantchus to migrate into Chinese territory by promising them land grants and freedom from taxation for a period of three years. The Russian authorities endeavour to represent to the Mantchus that as subjects of the Czar they will participate in all the benefits of protection and support from the Russian Government. The Chinese officials employ every species of intrigue to counteract the Russian influence, and make the most golden promises, entirely ignoring the obligations of the Pekin Treaty. The Russian authorities have difficulty in making a stand against the arts of the Chinese as they are not conversant with the niceties of the Chinese dialect. The Government has consequently telegraphed to St. Petersburg requesting the immediate despatch of officials possessing a competent knowledge of the language in order to successfully counteract this propaganda."

COUNTRY NEWS.

Both Edwards and his wife were conveyed to the lockup.

TEMORA, Monday.

A fire took place at Lower Temora on Saturday night, at Elliott's Golden Fleece Hotel, and the premises were gutted. It appears that at 11 o'clock Mrs. Elliott went out to attend to the horses in the stable, and while she was away the children accidentally set fire to the curtains. Mr. Elliott is said to be insured, but he is at present away in Sydney. Some impoverished persons, suffering from erysipelas and typhoid fever, have applied to Sub-inspector Lyons for medical assistance. Mr. James, Government hydraulic engineer, is visiting here, investigating the practicability and cost of constructing dams. The elections for the Progress Committee took place on Saturday, at the Academy of Music. The proceedings were of a lively nature throughout the polling, which lasted from 2 to 6. Never have the miners of Temora evinced so much interest in public matters. About 2000 votes were recorded by the presentation of miners' rights. Up to 11 o'clock on Saturday night only about one-third of the ballot papers had been gone through.

THE NEWCASTLE COLLIERY STRIKE.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our own Correspondent.)

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

Another meeting of the Borehole miners was held to-day, when the topmen and shiftmen who had been working below in the company's mine for some time past carrying out necessary alterations and repairs, reported that the whole of the work was now finished and that the pit was ready for the resumption of work. They also reported that the manager had given them notice of discontinuing their services on Saturday, but had requested them to start cutting coal for the company. They had declined to do so, and now asked to be admitted to the benefits of the Union. Mr. Curley said the voice of the district was quite in favour of admitting them to the same privileges as were enjoyed by other miners on strike. The meeting applauded the action taken by the top and shift men, who number between 50 and 60. It is now generally understood throughout the district that the A. A. Company intend starting the pit working as soon as they get hands.

DECISION UNDER THE LICENSING ACT.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our own Correspondent.)

An important decision was given to-day by the chairman of the Licensing Board. Application was made for the transfer of the license of the Australian Hotel, which was shown to contain five bedrooms and two sitting-rooms, with sufficient space as specified by the Act, besides several other smaller rooms. ## MR. LYNCH, M.L.A., AT COWRA.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our own Correspondent.)

COWRA, Monday.

Mr. Lynch, senior member for this electorate, addressed about 200 electors at Walsh's Hotel on Saturday night. Mr. Donnelly, J.P., occupied the chair. In the course of his speech, which lasted nearly an hour, the hon. member gave an interesting resume of the progress and present position of the colony. He reviewed the railway policy of the Government, criticising the unequal scale of charges on certain goods, particularly on agricultural machinery and produce, also animadverting at some length on the management of State prisons, which were maintained at enormous expense to the taxpayers, and showed how prisons could be made nearly self-supporting. Mr. Lynch reiterated his intention to persist in endeavouring to obtain a remission of interest on selections, and submitted the names of 24 other members who were pledged similarly to their constituents. The railway line from Blayney to Murrumburrah through Cowra was a settled question, and as soon as the local dispute with reference to the route at Carcoar was adjusted tenders would be called for the work. The new Licensing Bill admitted of some amendments; but still he thought that if judiciously administered in its present form the measure would be found eventually a boon to the public. At the conclusion of his speech, which was listened to with marked attention, a vote of confidence in Mr. Lynch, on the motion of Mr. Mawby, seconded by Mr. Lockyer, was carried unanimously. After a few remarks by Mr. Campbell, and a vote of thanks to the chairman, the meeting, which was most orderly, terminated.

AMUSEMENTS.

Repetitions were the order of the evening at most of the places of amusement last night. Thus, "The World" was repeated at the Theatre Royal; "Honour" was again given at the Gaiety Theatre; "Shamus-na-Lena" was once more played at the Queen's Theatre; and at the Victoria Hall "Olympic Revels" delighted the audience.

The Lilliputian Opera Company at the Opera House produced "H. M. S. Pinafore" last night, and although the opera is anything but a novelty, even when sung by children, its charming melodies and quaint humour were as acceptable as ever. There is this to be said of the little performers drilled by Mr. Pollard, that for the most part they seem to comprehend as fully as adults can the work they have to do, and that they do it with natural ease, which almost makes one forget that they are acting. This is the great secret of their success, combined with the fact that people, forgetting how imitative children are, and how quickly they learn to play a part, look upon these particular children as prodigies, and accordingly crowd to see them. Those who play principal parts in this company are undoubtedly to be commended, but very much of the merit of their success is undoubtedly due to the older artists who have taught them their business. In "Pinafore" the only fault of any prominence is that several of the principals speak so quickly at times that words are maimed and mispronounced. This is a fault which can and should be corrected. The principal performers are:—Josephine, Miss May Pollard; Little Buttercup, Miss Salinger; Sir Joseph Porter, K.C.B., Miss Maud Pollard; Captain Corcoran, Master H. Salinger; Ralph Rackstraw, Master C. Osmond; Dick Deadeye, Master E. Osmond; Boatswain, Miss Amy Brooks. The opera season will close on Friday night, and on Saturday evening Mr. Frederick Marshall's Comedy Company will open in "The Guv'nor."

From Brisbane we learn by telegram that the English Opera, under Shepperson's management, opened last night at the Albert Hall, and the performance was successful.

THE FANCY FAIR.

Success still attends the efforts of those who are concerned in the management and conduct of "Ye Fayre of Ye Olden Tyme" at St. Mary's Cathedral, and it is uncertain when it will be closed—certainly not while patrons are so numerous and liberal as they are at present. Last night the programme was varied, and new dances and processions, a fresh tournament, and changes at the side shows went to make up a most attractive "bille of ye fayre."

THE WEATHER.

Yesterday broke fine, but the air was close and oppressive, and towards noon heavy clouds began to appear from the southward. They rapidly spread over the sky, and soon after noon rain commenced to fall steadily, and continued till about 2 o'clock, when it ceased, and the sky afterwards became quite clear. The evening and night were beautifully fine. The effect of the rain in the city was to make the streets very muddy. As will be seen by the telegrams below and the meteorological reports and records elsewhere, the rain has been pretty general in the western districts of the colony; but the quantity that has fallen is not enough for requirements. A few of the northern districts also reported rain yesterday.

[By Telegraph.]

"THE LOST WATERS."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Referring to my brief letter which appeared in your issue of April 14th, in reference to the underground waters of Central Australia, I beg to further show why a topographical and geological survey is necessary to determine the course of these underground waters.

1. I maintain that the Blue Mountains, as they are called in New South Wales, or Dividing Range, which extends along the eastern side of the Australian continent as far north as Cape York, and southerly into Victoria, have always been the watershed for waters on the east and west, whether there was an inland sea or not. Let us go back to the time when the now continent of Australia was two islands, viz., Eastern and Western Australia, divided by a sea extending from Spencer Gulf on the south to the Gulf of Carpentaria on the north. We have every indication that such has been at one time the case, taking into consideration the nature of the country between those two points. The only portions of Australia that were then above water would be Victoria, the eastern portion of New South Wales and Queensland, including the dividing range, with its spurs and watercourses, running away westward down to this sea, and the higher portions of Western Australia.

At that time I am of opinion that the Murray River did not then fall into Lake Alexandria, but ran westerly into this dividing sea. The Darling, then not being a branch of the Murray, also ran westerly into this sea; but the continent was gradually rising till it formed one island. Then the salt water found its way to the sea towards Spencer's Gulf, and several of the depressions in the interior which are now salt water lakes are all that remain of the ocean.

At the same time there are other things to be taken into consideration which filled up this sea, as well as the slowly rising land. River mud kept washing into it and stopped there, as it became an inland sea, and has made the Darling Plains as rich as we find them at present. Certainly before this deposit of river mud there would be a deposit of sand and shingle, carried into the lower parts while the sea was open to the ocean.

To explain my reason for saying that the Darling and Murray were then separate rivers, I will refer you to the map of Australia. You will notice that the Darling flows in a south-westerly direction until it reaches Menindie, when it turns sharp south and runs into the Murray. You will also notice that the Murray, some distance after its junction with the River Darling, turns sharp south in the same manner, and enters the sea through Lake Alexandria; and if a line be drawn from the great bend in the Murray to the bend in the Darling at Menindie, it will be found to be about north-east and south-west; also, that there is a ridge running in the direction of this line, and not a great distance from it. Now I am of opinion that these two bends are where the Murray and Darling first entered this dividing sea. That is the bend at Menindie in the Darling, and the great bend in the Murray where it now runs south into Lake Alexandrina. But as soon as this ridge got elevated, it turned the Darling south into the Murray, and the Murray south into Lake Alexandrina. It also turned a number of waters into the Murray and Darling Rivers which disappear on the plains, but reach these rivers underground. There is no doubt that these plains are alluvial deposits on the level, and elevated bed of the ocean that was.

As regards the Darling plains being formed by aerial drifts, I cannot for an instant believe that to be the case.

The spurs of the Dividing Range, as also the watercourses run out westerly and south-westerly, and continue for miles underneath the plains, although we lose sight of them when they reach the plains, or soon after.

As I am intruding on your valuable space, and do not intend to write any more on this subject, I will conclude in saying that a careful topographical and geological survey of all waters which disappear in this way is the only method of arriving at the grand secret of where to bore for water.

I am, &c., J. LIVINGSTONE CLARKE.

A novelty in the shape of a valentine has emanated from the Liverpool Ladies' Land League, who have sent to Mr. Parnell, in Kilmainham Gaol, a cheque of £200 as a mark of their affection and regard. The ladies have stipulated that the novel valentine is to be devoted to the maintenance of Mr. Parnell and his fellow-suspects in prison.

THE TURF.

The settling over the late Autumn Meeting of the Sydney Turf Club took place at Tattersall's last evening, when, as is always the case when the public win, everything passed off satisfactorily. The following were the amounts paid over by the secretary:—Mr. G. Foote, £100; Mr. J. Onus, £100; Mr. J. Kerr, £90; Mr. T. Shore, £50; Mr. E. H. Weston, £85; and Mr. J. Allsopp, £50; besides several second moneys in smaller sums.

Although Mr. Rouse had been appointed starter for the Sydney Turf Club, and Mr. Clibborn wrote to him informing him of the fact, he would have been still in ignorance of his appointment had he not heard of it in the course of ordinary conversation. In the unavoidable absence of Mr. Rouse, Mr. Richards performed the duties of starter with great success.

On Saturday an inquiry was held by the committee of the Sydney Turf Club as to the manner in which Hotspur had been ridden by Hatch in the Steeplechase, when the lad, who had never ridden over the big jumps before, was held entirely blameless.

Another investigation was held by the committee of the same club yesterday, when the owner of Euchre complained about the way in which his horse had been ridden in the April Handicap. The evidence of several jockeys having been taken, the committee decided that the owner of the horse had failed to make out a case against Gainsford, who rode Euchre in the race mentioned.

CRICKET.

A match was played last Saturday morning, in the Domain, between teams representing Messrs. Myers and Solomon and S. Hoffnung and Company. The scores were Myers and Solomon 95, and Hoffnung and Company 28. For the winners Williams played well for 56.

A match was played on Saturday last, between the second Warwicks and the Windsor C.C., on the ground of the latter, Moore Park, which resulted in an easy victory for the Warwicks by 80 runs. The Warwicks going first to the wickets put 94 runs together; Austin 36, and Harper, Healey, and Evers 13 each, being the principal scorers. The Windsors then went to the wickets and only managed to get 12 runs, Noble taking five wickets for 3 runs, and Austin five for 6. Holdsworth bowled very well for the Windsors.

THE INTERCOLONIAL BOAT RACE.

Reports from Melbourne state that the two crews in training for the forthcoming intercolonial eight-oar race still continue steady at their practice. It is thought that the New South Wales crew will make up in a measure for their inferiority in physical strength by their superior condition, as several of the Melbourne men are far from being in that state of health that should emanate from proper training. Our men having now had ample opportunity of trying the new boat, pronounce her as being first-class in every respect. At this stage of the proceedings it is not out of place to give a brief resumé of these annual matches. They first came about by a challenge from the Melbourne to the Sydney clubs; this challenge was the outcome of an attempt by the present hon. secretary of the New South Wales Association while on a visit to Melbourne in 1877 to re-establish the four-oar contests. The challenge, addressed separately to the Sydney and Mercantile clubs, was declined by the former but warmly taken up by the Mercantile club. The honour of establishing annual eight-oar contests must be accorded to the then office-bearers of that club. After some difficulties were surmounted, a crew, consisting of seven members of the M. R. C., and one from the Sydney Club, was sent to Melbourne in 1878, only to be defeated, after a hard struggle, the defeated crew being in a great measure handicapped by their boat, which was an old one. In 1879 a Melbourne crew visited Sydney and was defeated by the local crew, after a good race for a mile. In 1880 a crew of maiden oarsmen were sent from this colony only to be easily defeated by a very strong crew of Victorians. Last year the Melbourne men defeated our crew on the Parramatta. It will thus be seen that Victoria has had the best of the game up to the present. The New South Wales oarsmen must defeat the Victorians on their own river before the former can regain their lost prestige. The race is open to amateurs only, and the crews row for honour, but each year medals have been given by leading citizens to the winners. Last year the present Mayor of Sydney was the donor, and for the race previously they were the gift of the Hon. George Thornton. This year the numbers from each of the large clubs are reversed from what they were in 1878, seven of the men being from the S.R.C. shed and one from the M. R. C. From Monday last the men have rowed a distance from four and a-half to six miles at a stroke varying from 38 to 40 per minute. There was a large crowd of spectators to view them on Friday last, it being the anniversary of the eight-hour movement. The men have been most cordially received during their visit.

The Argus of Saturday says: "The New South Wales crew usually go out at about half-past 3 in the afternoon, and the Victorians at half-past 5. The first-named have now become accustomed to their boat, and are steadily improving. They row with a nice even swing and in excellent time, but feather dangerously close to the water. Their style is in some respect in strong contrast to that of the Victorian crew. The latter mark the commencement of the stroke with a vigorous catch, doing most of the work before the rowlock, whilst the former appear to pull with the same even strength from the beginning to the end of the stroke. On Saturday the Victorian crew, with Jenvey in the place of Brown (No. 3), rowed from Melbourne to the starting post at Spottiswood's, and then went over the course, rowing hard from the start to the finish, at Halliburton's. On Monday and Tuesday, the crew completo rowed from the Williamstown steam ferry to the Ship Inn; and on Wednesday rowed down to the stone wall (Saltwater River), doing a spurt at about 33 up to the Stoney Creek, and from thence occasional spurts up to the sheds. The crew are showing very good form; they lay out to the work and catch the water well together. The Victorians are using a very fine set of 12 feet 6 inch oars, by Ayling, lately imported, and placed at their disposal by the Melbourne Rowing Club. The members of both crews continue to enjoy the best of health."

Last year a rowing association was formed in Adelaide, South Australia, which has made so much progress that it is proposed to send a crew of South Australians to compete in the next intercolonial boat race. This will be rowed on the Parramatta River in April, 1883.

FOOTBALL.

The annual general meeting of the Waratah Football Club, formed last year out of the old club, for the purpose of playing under the rules of the New South Wales Football Association, will be held this evening, at the Freemasons' Hotel, York-street, and a full attendance of members is invited.

Interesting to Dealers in Fiddles.—We are told (says Public Opinion) that we are daily becoming more musical in England. We accept the compliment with complacency, and think it a proof of "culture" to look down upon ballad concerts, and talk learnedly and go into raptures about classical music. We have read about Cremona fiddles, and hint, not at all vaguely, that we cannot endure others. A recent trial (Hodges v. Chanon) shows one result of this kind of talk. The plaintiff was a clerk and a private dealer in violins, living at Gateshead, and the defendant has a well-known shop in Wardour-street. Mr. Hodges called at the shop and was shown a violin, for which the price asked was £150, but which he finally bought for £55, the defendant representing that it was made by Carlo Bergonzi, one of the celebrated Cremonese makers of the last century. It turned out to be not a Carlo Bergonzi, though it bore his label, but the work of a much later manufacturer, probably of the present century. The defendant admitted that he had bought the fiddle in Paris, and put the label on it himself, for he said, "No one would buy a violin without a label on it;" and to the Judge's question, "Where did you get it" (the label) "from?" he replied, "Oh, we always have some about." He stated that his father had been one of the founders of the school of "reproducers" of old violins, and that a large manufactory of these antique instruments exists at the present time at Mellcourt, in Lorraine. Verdict for the plaintiff, £70 damages, including the £55 paid for the instrument.

MINING INTELLIGENCE.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our own Correspondents.)

TEMORA, Monday.

Twenty-seven tons of alluvial cement from Billy the Pole's claim yielded 13½oz.

YOUNG, Monday.

Messrs. Hunter and Solomons, of Sydney, the purchasers of Jackson's reef, Barmedman, visited the claim on Wednesday, and breaking a huge lump of quartz a mass of specimens containing coarse gold was disclosed.

The manager of the West Balmoral Gold-mining Company, under date, Mount M'Donald, 19th April, reports:—"Since last report (April 5) the tunnel has been driven 7 feet, total 35 feet 6 inches, 50 feet from starting point; ground same as last report; two shifts employed, to-morrow shall start three. During the fortnight the crosscut has been driven 3 feet 6 inches, total 18 feet. We are now coming to a change of ground. The eastern shaft has been sunk 9 feet during the fortnight, total from surface 21 feet." The half-yearly report for presentation to the shareholders on the 28th instant shows receipts amounting to £4051, including £3085 proceeds of gold. The expenses had absorbed £2774. An interim dividend absorbing £1250 had been paid, and £27 balance was carried to new profit and loss account.

The mining manager of the Hidden Treasure Gold-mining Company, Copeland, reports per telegram under date 22nd instant:—"170 tons stone crushed for a yield of 700oz. amalgam. Still crushing, and 50 tons of stone on the surface."

The manager of the Grand Papau Mining Company, Limited, telegraphed from Georgetown, 22nd instant, as follows:—"Have struck splendid reef in Papau lease, making bigger every shot, 30 feet below Hansen's lowest level. Stone coming up shows gold freely."

A correspondent reports that the Lady Matilda quartz-crushing battery was formally set in motion by Miss Matilda Sharp, on the 15th April. It is from Mort's Dock and Engineering Company, and consists of 15 head of stampers. The Lady Matilda Company has been registered with a capital of £20,000 in 20,000 shares of £1 each, of which 18,000 are considered paid up. The country on the reef seems to admit of easy working, and the contour of the ground favours tunnelling. 380 tons of stone are raised, and this it is estimated when crushed will yield £5000 worth of gold. The battery has commenced work on the average stone, and when 100 tons have been crushed, they will clear up.

PUBLIC COMPANIES.

WARATAH COAL COMPANY.

The following report was adopted at the half-yearly meeting of the shareholders held yesterday:—

The directors submit herewith the result of the past half-year's operations.

The balance-sheet shows at credit of profit and loss account on 31st March, £10,539 18s. 9d., which it is proposed to apply as under, viz.:—

| Leaving a balance to be carried forward of ... | 7,800 13 2 |

Of the amount £10,539 18s. 9d. at credit of profit and loss account, the sum of £8359 7s. 4d. represents balance brought forward from last half-year.

The railway, rolling stock, steam collier, staiths, and other plant, are all in efficient working order.

The opening out of the coalfield is still being proceeded with, and the directors hope to be able to deliver during the ensuing half-year a larger quantity of coal than was disposed of during the period under review.

The dividend will be payable at the close of the meeting.

Russian Inconsistency.—Russia is a country of contradictions. The Poriadok has just been suppressed for its mild defence of liberal principles, and the Golos, after having been suppressed for several months, has reappeared, but just to receive a first warning (three of which will bring upon it suppression). That is, when the little liberty of the press there was is trampled upon, the Government of the Czar is giving liberty in another direction. The Little-Russian language, which was so severely forbidden by Alexander II., seems now to be recognized as a real factor in the civilizing movement. A play in that language has been allowed to be publicly performed. The Armenian students of St. Petersburg have also been allowed to perform an original play in the native tongue—a drama full of noble and liberal ideas.

Mr. Herbert Spencer, writing to the Nonconformist respecting an article which had appeared in that paper on the Anti-Aggression League, says:—"I rejoice to see that the movement now known as the Anti-Aggression League meets with decided sympathy from the Nonconformist and Independent. I infer that the co-operation of that influential part of the community which your paper represents may be hoped for. It is a favourable sign of our times that religious differences, no matter how extreme, do not prevent the united action of men who agree in their moral aims. Many of those who, like myself, do not accept the theological doctrines of the current creed, yield to none in their desire to see its ethical doctrines prevail. Not unfrequently, especially in their intercourse with the ruling classes, they find themselves in the anomalous position, that, though not classed as Christians, they nevertheless have to defend the principles of Christianity against those who are classed as Christians, but who, in their dealings with foreign peoples, refuse to recognize those principles, and even ridicule the proposal to be guided by them. The Dissenters are, I am glad to believe, not ready thus to abandon the kernel while anxious to preserve the shell. Through several channels have already come proofs that the various organized bodies of artizans may be counted upon to give active support to the Anti-Aggression League. Their strength, if joined with that of the Nonconformists, and made permanently available by an appropriate organization, ought to put an effectual check on the aggressive tendencies of our military and official classes."

FREE TRADE v. PROTECTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—For 20 years I have been of the opinion that encouragement to native industries would be beneficial to such a country as New South Wales, and five years since, say November, 1877, I published a pamphlet on the subject, a copy of which I now send. This pamphlet brought upon me no small amount of odium, but what of that? I believe now, as I did then, that what I wrote was true, and would be for the benefit of this my adopted country. I knew that the facts set forth were not popular, but not being a popularity-hunter, I preferred throwing my lot in with some few others, who thought then, as they do now, that this country would never reach the position that she was entitled to occupy until we had more manufactures, and this we know could never take place until our new industries were encouraged by being protected in their early efforts.

Amongst those with whom I was first associated in Sydney in trying to educate men in the idea that the more native industries were encouraged the more population would increase, and the money spent in manufactures would ultimately benefit every man in this community, not only those in business, but those following pastoral and agricultural pursuits, some of my early associates have passed away, but many are left; and I might say that amongst our number in the early days of our struggles were some of the most able and leading men in position in Sydney of that day, and some who occupy the same positions at present.

Most of us, however, got sick at heart, for two reasons. The first was: we saw there was no chance of pressing anything on a Government while there was no want of money—not because our revenue met the demands made on the Treasury, but because our Government, when a deficit of a million pounds or so stared them in the face, simply fell back on the land, and sold one million acres. We shall not always have land to sell, and then where will the money come from? Have patience for a little, and my old friends and fellow-workers will be rewarded—not by getting anything from the wreck of our patrimony, which is fast passing away, but by knowing that what we faithfully struggled for will be accomplished.

Perhaps there are few men in Sydney who watch more keenly than I do the movements of our public men, or of men trying to thrust themselves forward upon the public, and by some means or other manage to get credit for what they never did, or rather for what other persons worked hard to accomplish. Such men put me in mind of "Lana Macree's dog," who was such an obliging animal he would run a portion of the road with everyone.

A few words on a part of Mr. G. H. Reid's letter, and for the present I am done. That gentleman said:—"But we wish to see the great factories which will yet arise—and some are already to be seen—all resting on the rock of profit and loss, the only safe basis for capital and labour." Then that gentleman admits such factories "may grow slowly," very slow I am quite sure. But where are the great factories Mr. Reid refers to that have grown up; and had they not some help to develop their industry? I will name three, two of which succeeded, and one of which was almost, if not altogether, ruined. The manufacture of sugar became a large, successful, and beneficial source of employment in this colony. Why? Because it was encouraged to the extent of £5 per ton tax upon foreign sugar. But I can see that this manufacture is about being strangled in its infancy, in order to benefit some of our importers. The sound of the ruin of this industry is borne on the air from Fiji, where the Colonial Sugar Company are preparing to meet the death-knell of the sugar trade in New South Wales. The kerosene works were started, and the manufacture became a success. Why? Because 1s. a gallon duty was placed on the imported article.

A large factory, or rather mill, was established at Liverpool, not far from Sydney, for the manufacture of paper, which was not a success. Why? Because it was not protected in any way, and the importers of foreign paper lowered their prices to such an extent that an industry which was a credit to the colony was coolly murdered. Had we a patriotic Government in power, would they ever have submitted to such conduct? No; when they saw that an attempt, an unjust attempt, was being made to ruin this industry, their duty would have been simply to protect those people's property from the hands of men who combined to ruin an industry which had just been established, but not on the rock of protection. I am, &c.,

Sydney, April 22. WILLIAM ELLARD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Assuming that protectionists chiefly desire the well-being of the individual, it is necessary for them to show us, not generally but precisely, in what manner skilled artizans would be benefitted by a premature birth, a forced growth of special manufacturing industries in our midst. If, by the will of the people, certain necessaries, foreign hardware for example, should be arrested on our frontiers under a prohibitive tariff, the production of hardware in this country would be stimulated in consequence; but at the expense of the colonial purchaser. In so caring, however, for the partly employed or any unemployed hardware workers who may be amongst us, to be consistent should we not on the same lines prohibit excess of their particular description of labour from landing on our shores, and should it not, moreover, be deemed essential to regulate the number of hardware factories in this colony, and to limit the output from their works? If we should interfere fiscally in part, and at the expense of the masses of the people, should we not interfere in whole, and endeavour by laws to keep down the evil of over-production, and to prevent the over accumulation of special labour in our limited market? If we should keep out foreign goods we should certainly be doing so for the benefit chiefly of local manufacturers, therefore we should keep out foreign labour for the benefit of local artizans. But to attempt this latter task would be futile. If we have freedom of labour we should have freedom of commerce. They are interdependent, and are fundamental twin factors for individual as well as general weal. To make for human happiness they should, they must, go hand in hand. So soon as hardware industries, encouraged by protective duties, made some headway amongst us, would not more workers in hardware be enticed to our shores, to find, when too late, in our hothouse atmosphere of protection to hardware manufacturers no corresponding protection for human blood and brains; to learn they had brought their unrequired labour to an overstocked and limited market, and that their last strait was worse than their previous one? Under this misnamed protection doctrine and protective duty on hardware these typical immigrant hardware workers, with their wives and families, could not escape from the penalties which they, with their colonial fellow-workers, would principally suffer from, over production; whilst periodical insolvencies also involving wide spread ruin would not be avoided. It is undeniable that over production is common to both free trade and so-called protectionist countries; but there is abundant evidence that this evil has proved a heavier burden on industrials in the American Union than on the British free-trade artizan.

Is it not more than probable that the enormous development of manufactures in civilized countries—a resultant of science and machinery—has caused production of cheapened manufactures in excess of the requirements of even this prodigal age? And on physical grounds as well as in the important interests of the married working man, is it not prudent to continue to give our young national energies full lest and freest scope in the path of pastoral, agricultural, and mining pursuits; to train our young in the direction of rural life, to struggle with the healthy forces of nature under our genial Austral sky, unhampered by insidious sumptuary laws; and to obtain the needful manufactured supplies for the work of moulding our nascent greatness, with the least friction and suffering; with the least unavoidable waste of brain and muscle power; with the least possible restriction or strain on our industrial and economic resources? So let us work for what Mr. Kendall calls—"The splendid marvel of the years to be."

CONTINENTAL GOSSIP.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT "STELLA.")

PARIS, FEB. 3.

The very unassuming third First Magistrate of the third French Republic has decided to give an official dinner at the Elysee Palace every Thursday until further notice. At the first of these dinners, given last evening, the marshals and commanders of corps d'armee were received; next week, the Judges and chief members of the Department of Justice will be the guests of M. Grevy; after that, there will be a grand diplomatic dinner, and so on. An evening reception will follow each dinner; but the general public would like a little more expansion and variety to be given to the hospitalities of the first citizen of France, considered to be somewhat too exclusively bent on the "rounding out" of his own private fortune by the economising of the handsome allowance granted to him from the coffers of the state.

Private entertainments, however, are numerous and splendid; and charity balls and concerts follow one another with bewildering rapidity, thus supplying something of the impetus to the social dissipation (for which the trade of Paris specially caters) formerly supplied by the initiative of the Court.

A very splendid affair of the kind alluded to came off on Friday evening last, when the "Society of Breton Lifeboats" gave, at the favourite Continental Hotel, a ball which may be summed up as the most brilliant gathering of the present season. Queen Isabella having accepted the honorary patronage of the affair, her entry, at midnight, was welcomed with the performance by Wittmann's excellent band of the Spanish Royal March. The company included the cream of the Spanish and other foreign colonies, a numerous contingent of the French nobility, and, on the closing of the theatres, a bevy of the leading beauties of the Paris stage. The decoration of the rooms was extremely tasteful and brilliant; the toilettes of the ladies were magnificent, as is now the rule; and the entry of the queens of the stage, who came attired in various fancy costumes, carrying baskets of posies, knick-nacks, sweetmeats, &c., which they sold at high prices, added considerably both to the effectiveness of the coup d'œil and to the amount of the receipts. The dancing, prolonged far into the morning, was very animated; and a splendid supper assisted in keeping up the animation of the affair.

The same superlatively handsome establishment has also been the scene of the Annual German Charity Ball, under the patronage and presidence of the Prince and Princess Hohenlohe and the whole personnel of the German Embassy. This gathering, like the Breton ball, was a brilliant success.

Various learned societies have just given their annual dinner. The annual gatherings of the "old pupils" of the great Public schools, who come up to Paris from all the points of the compass to renew the ties and associations of their youth, have also been taking place, with the usual eclat and good fellowship. There is no lack of social vivacity under the present regime; but there is also a complete absence of the economy and simplicity formerly supposed to be inherent in the social life of a Republic. Just as extravagant outlay in dress was never so general as at present, so extravagant outlay is the rule for furniture, equipage, the adornment of rooms and of the table. The latter, for even a small dinner among intimates, is set out with splendid and artistic ware, glass, flowers, &c. Old and new styles of porcelain are equally in demand, equally beautiful, and almost equally costly, the quality of antiquity and of rarity adding somewhat to the cost of acquisition. Costly Barbottine ware, the "ivory" and "enamel" wares, with their flowers in gold relief, their birds, flowers, insects, or landscapes, exquisitely painted, and every piece of the set a study, must be had at any sacrifice. Some of these sets are amusing, showing the adventures of ducks, frogs, &c., in comic predicaments. The table itself must present an artistic ensemble, as well as artistic details. The general effect may be flowery; or it may be grassy, all tiny rivulets in troughs with grassbanks; or it may be icy, with ice in blocks, snow-peaks, and deep caverns. Fashion is elastic on this subject: impart to your dinner-table whatever general "idea" it may suit you to adopt, but an "idea" there must be; and as one cannot employ the same adornment on all occasions, a very pretty chapter of outlay is thus opened out in the expenditure of a household. The terrible crash of a fortnight ago, which has brought ruin to so many, will compel many of the hosts to retrench for a time; but the places of those who are thus compelled to drop out of the ranks will be taken by others; and there is no probability that even the dire upsettings of a panic, in which five milliards of francs (one milliard more than the fine exacted of France by Germany after the late war!) changed hands in the course of a few hours, will exercise any appreciable effect on the outlay of Paris during the present winter.

The gossips of this capital are busy just now with the doings of Mustapha-Pacha, the ex-Minister of the Bey of Tunis, who is spending the immense wealth he has squeezed out of his countrymen in extravagances which, magnified and embellished by the imagination of the capital, almost throw the recitals of the Arabian Nights into the shade. The wealthier Tunisians appear to have a vocation for extravagant outlay. Some forty years ago Ben Ayet, also a disgraced Minister of the Bey of Tunis, squandered immense sums in a reckless magnificence of outlay that made him the lion of this city while his money lasted. As he made it a rule never to pay a farthing until compelled to do by the myrmidons of the law, his doings occupied a considerable space in the attention of this capital. It was M. de Lesseps who set up this extraordinary foreigner in Paris. Ben-Ayet had charged him to buy for him the finest habitation in the French metropolis, giving him carte blanche for the purchase; but M. de Lesseps, not caring to assume the responsibility of such a purchase, contented himself with renting a very magnificent mansion in the Faubourg St. Honore. When Ben-Ayet arrived he was greatly mortified at learning that he was only a tenant in this splendid abode; so he sent for the landlord, and paid him, then and there, 600,000 francs, the price of the mansion. "Now I am chez moi," he observed to M. Lesseps, when he had thus summarily made himself the owner of the sumptuous dwelling secured for him by the exertions of the future continuator of the Ptolemies. "No, you are not," replied M. de Lesseps, "there are here furniture, pictures, books, and a vast number of objects of all kinds that belong to your ex-landlord! He has sold you the bare walls and nothing else." Thereupon Ben-Ayet grew impatient and angry; he sent for the ex-landlord and made at once a new bargain with him, paying him down another hundred thousand francs, for which consideration the ex landlord made over to him "everything in the house with the exception of the clothes on his back."

The late Marquis of Hertford renowned, a generation ago, for his whims and extravagances, became the possessor of a valuable piece of real property in much the same way. He had rented the whole of a great mansion in the Rue Laffitte. One morning his valet awakened him, saying that someone wanted to examine the mansion. "But I have hired it!" said his lordship. "True, my lord," returned the valet, "but the owner wants to sell it, and here are some people who want to go through it. "Tell the owner," said the Marquis, as he buried his head in the pillow again, "that I will buy his house; only let him not disturb my sleep any more."

The people of St. Petersburg have given a most cordial and flattering reception to the envoy of M. Gambetta, whom he had dispatched to that capital with a view to paving the way for the entente cordiale he was anxious to establish with Russia against Germany, of which country the fair envoy is a hearty and determined hater. M. Gambetta sent the same clever and fascinating lady some months ago to Italy, to smooth over certain roughnesses that had developed themselves in the diplomatic relations of the two "Latin" countries. There also, she was successful in captivating the admiration and sympathy of the statesmen to whom she was sent. The King received her, and had a conversation of an hour and a half with her. Whether the Queen received her or not has not been made known here. Her success has been even more brilliant in the Northern capital; and it was understood that the Empress would probably receive her on her visit to Moscow. The sudden downfall of M. Gambetta must therefore be doubly unwelcome to her, as his upsetting upsets the places and projects she was sent to advocate. The Empress of Austria invited her to visit her on her way through Vienna, but the unexpected descent of the Czar expectant from the pinnacle to which his self-assertion had raised him will probably hasten the return of the fair and enterprising envoy from a mission which has ceased to have an aim or a meaning.

Hungary has been exporting fresh meat to Paris, packed in ice, and is about to send us live stock on the plan successfully tried to Italy. Africa is about to send great quantities of oranges to Europe; tea and coffee are taking an important place among the agriculturists of the Cape; and Zanzibar is rapidly developing the cultivation of india-rubber, the price of which has risen within a year to £250 per ton.

FEB. 10.

What ought to afford the most convincing demonstration of the madness of gambling is still going on here; that is to say, the sixth act in the drama of the selling-off of the miscellaneous treasures amassed by the people who have created Monaco, and grown rich by the ruin of the gamesters they have attracted to that enchanting "hell."

After the two sales of magnificent jewels, the two sales of the rarest and most costly lace, the sale of cashmeres, velvets, robes, furs, &c., the sale of works of art, left by the late Madame Blanc, we are now summoned to a new clearing-out of the jewel boxes of that "lady," who began life as a servant of the work in the family of M. Blanc, who reluctantly consented to marry her when the scandal of the numerous family growing up around the two so scandalized the King of Prussia that he made this tardy marriage the condition of the demand by M. Blanc, who was negotiating with the Government for "farming" the gambling-house of Hamburg. Happily for Mme. Blanc, whose husband was believed to have done his utmost to get free of an unwelcome yoke, the constitution of his wife resisted all the attempts that were believed to have tampered with it, and the unwilling husband finished by resigning himself to the inevitable. The ex-servant made him a very good wife, who seconded him zealously and intelligently in his projects, and who after his death carried on the evil enterprise of the Circean sty, on the banks of the Mediterranean, with even greater skill and success than had been done by her husband. Personally she was much liked, being extremely generous to the poor; and it is said that in one or two cases, in which the suffering entailed upon themselves by the victims of the gaming-table were unusually severe and dramatic, she gave back part, or even the whole, of the gains that had thus accrued to her house. But when one considers the immensity of the fortune that has been made by these people out of the follies, crimes, and sorrows of the people they have attracted to their ruin, it is impossible not to regret the powerlessness of the rest of the world to compel the closing of so dangerous a place. The personal effects of Madame Blanc appear likely to realize, when all shall have been sold off, little less than a million sterling. The fortune of the family, in money, amounts to many millions. And all this is the product of the gaming-table.

A very strong effort has been made, in Nice itself, for a year or two past, to get the French Government to force the Prince of Monaco to withdraw the license in virtue of which the gaming establishment exists. But no amount of petitioning is likely to have any effect, seeing that the Princeling, whose domains are far less extensive than many an English estate, is absolutely master of his minute domain, and neither the French Government nor any other Power has the slightest right to interfere between him and his policy. His whole income is derived from his share of the profits of the "hell" which flourishes so brilliantly under his sovereign protection.

Each sale of the rare and splendid treasures amassed by Madame Blanc brings a crowd of professionals and amateurs from every part of Europe. The display of the objects to be disposed of attracts to the auction hall in the Rue Drouot such crowds that the premises can hardly hold them, and any specially rare and attractive "lot" is disputed with astonishing vigour.

These auction rooms have been unusually busy since the commercial crash of a fortnight ago. It is consoling to see, however, that everybody is not ruined, since while many have been forced to sell off their superfluities, there have been just as many ready to buy them.

A sale which will shortly make a great stir among seers and buyers, is that of the Crown jewels of France, which are to be sold, with the exception of those which may be termed historical, and which will be placed, as such, among the collections of the Louvre, with the pictures, antiquities, and other treasures there brought together.

The first inventory of the French Crown jewels was made in 1692; the last, in 1875. And these precious "pebbles" are still in the care of M. Germain Bapst, the eminent jeweller whose ancestors have been, from father to son through the last 200 years, the "Crown Jewellers" of France. The present incumbent of this honourable but somewhat anxious post is delighted with the approaching cessation of a responsibility whose advantages are so greatly outweighed by its charges.

The establishment of M. Bapst contains, among other interesting things, the portraits of all the pieces of jewellery worn by the sovereigns at the last three coronations, and of all those that have been worn by their wives. Under each reign, the Crown jewels have been kept distinct from the jewels belonging personally to the various queens, empresses, and princesses of the time. Marie Antoinette never wore more than twenty-three of the Crown diamonds; all her jewellery, with this slight exception, was her own personal property. At M. Bapst's is also to be seen the pattern of the famous necklace that played so famous and fatal a part in the downfall of the throne and the Royal family. It must have been, in truth, one of the most beautiful as well as most magnificent of the ornaments produced by the skill of the jeweller, working into his artistic creation the most splendid of nature's productions. The famous necklace consisted of a row of enormously large diamonds, forming a throatlet, lying flat round the neck like a dog's collar, with a drop of smaller stones hanging from each of these large ones. From each side of the throatlet fell a double row of smaller stones that hung down over the corsage, ending in large tassels of diamonds. A bow of pale pink riband fastened each tassel to the corsage, and kept the whole in place. This splendid ornament, which exercised so decisive an influence over her life, and may even be said to have decided her death, was never worn by the unfortunate Queen.

By the inventory of 1691 the jewels of the French Crown were valued at some £60,000 only. The Regent diamond, bought in 1717 for £135,000, and sundry other later purchases, brought the total valuation up to £630,000; the Regent alone, by that valuation, being set down at £18,000, an estimation very far in excess of its selling value.

In 1791, according to the valuation then made by M. Meniete, these Crown jewels comprised 9547 brilliants, 506 pearls, 230 rubies, 134 sapphires, and 154 emeralds.

The First Napoleon, imitating Louis XIV., loaded himself with the Crown jewels at his coronation; the crown made for Josephine was made so heavy by the great mass of jewels it contained that it hurt her head, thus prefiguring, in the eyes of the superstitious, the sorrows of which that coronation was the beginning, as the unsteadiness of the crown worn at his coronation by James II., and which was perpetually toppling off his head during the ceremony, was considered to have prefigured his loss of the Crown shortly afterwards.

Napoleon gave a crown of diamonds and sapphires to his step-daughter, Queen Hortense, which crown was subsequently purchased by Queen Marie Amelie, wife of Louis Philippe, and was given by her to the Duchess of Montpensier, who gave it to her daughter on her marriage with the Count de Paris.

Louis Philippe never wore any of the Crown jewels. The Empress Eugenie, on the contrary, wore them frequently. She never looked more beautiful, even in her days of supremacy, than in the dresses she was fond of wearing, made of snowy India muslin, powdered, so to say, with diamonds. The history of a belt of diamonds (copied from one that had been worn on the stage by one of the leading Paris actresses), which the scandal-mongering gossips of this capital persist in declaring that the Empress had had made, and worn, is declared by M. Bapst to be entirely imaginary, a baseless fancy, without a vestige of reality. The sale of these jewels will necessarily create a lively sensation, and will bring jewellers and jewel-lovers from every point of the compass.

NOTES FROM THE NORTHERN TERRITORY.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

PALMERSTON, MARCH 20.

We paid a brief visit to the Shackle or Yam Creek, which boasts about the best country hotel in the territory, and is well and widely known as the only place where resides an actual real live young lady; for white ladies are scarce in the North, and we had seen only four up to this time since leaving Southport.

On March 9, Messrs. Harris and Mair (who left Port Darwin months ago to explore the country around the Elsie River and Limmens Bight, with a view to stocking on behalf of a Sydney firm) dined with the Minister and his party. They travelled altogether 1200 miles. They are two hardy, reticent fellows—reticent because they consider their information is first their employers'. They ran a slight danger from floods, but in every case they had no trouble with the blacks, who cleared away directly they saw them coming. About the only thing which is new in Messrs. Harris and Mair's information, so far as they have imparted it, is that the country generally is not very good. Coming back Port Darwinwards we had opportunities of studying the different ornithological specimens. There are not many that are rare or especially beautiful. Parrots of gaudy plumage there be, but there are others quite as pretty, and with the same lively chatter, in all the southern parts of the colonies. The cockatoos are little different from their family below—a trifle more intelligent and talkative, maybe. The emu, the bustard, and the pelican are just as ungainly, but more plentiful; and the quail are no less impudent because they are a little more bulky. The kingfishers—so far as I could judge—are larger than the South Australian; the pigeons are really beautiful. One kind is a very impertinent bird, by the way, fond of strutting about on the road till your horse is close upon it, which makes you think the bird is extending its claws from its nose, and contemning you, and then flying away with a peculiar whirr. It has red eyes and a bronze back, with matchless setting. The bower bird—a beautiful glossy black, and about the size of a pigeon—is passionately fond of fun. Its nest of twigs has connected with it a little promenade or bowling alley about 5 feet long, in one corner of which is placed a heap of coloured shells, beans, and leaves. The never monotonous amusement of the bird is to shift the positions of these gauds—at least so says a reliable gentleman who has watched the play. The jungle bird—about the size of an ordinary fowl—foolishly rears for itself huge hillocks of earth, some of them 10 feet high and 12 feet in diameter, very trimly shaped. One in the gardens near Palmerston has been used as the foundation of a summer house, and it gives a good elevation from which to gain a view of the vegetation. There is no pretension to architectural effect amongst these feathered builders, and the main thing you wonder at, in looking at these mounds, is why any sensible bird should spend so much downright hard work in making it, when it might have lived just as comfortably in a couple of empty wicker dead-marine envelopes. Then the pheasant gives itself a world of trouble to make an elaborate nest of grass as big as a haycock—a nest which is burnt every year—when it might accommodate itself and all its callers in some snug niche in the hillside without danger of being burnt out.

In the Howley district we inspected several mines, which were doing fairly well.

Under the scant shade of a spiral tree rises a little grass-grown mound beneath which lie the bones of poor young Fisher, brother of the deceased doctor of that name who lived and died in Wallaroo. The horses and the native animals walk over it, and not improbably camp fires of stranger travellers have been lit upon it, for no fence or mark of any kind protects it from intrusion. In a country which periodically is for months without a clergyman, and never has a doctor, the burial ceremony is hurried through anyhow. There is usually no sacredness or solemnity about death. A funeral is called a worm picnic. The "carcases" are buried anywhere, and often anyhow. The Police Inspector takes on his country trips a prayer-book, and if a man dies near where he is he reads the service for the dead; but often they are buried off hand, particularly in the remote parts. A friend of mine was visiting one of these one day, when a funeral took place. The grave had been dug overnight, and when the mourners came sorrow and coffin-burdened, they at once began to lower the tangible part of their load into the grave. Then they saw a wild cat in it. Solemnly spake the chief mourner—"Hist, boys, tisn't often we get such a chance of fun. S'posin' we turn the dogs on?"

When they had got through with the cat worrying, they "planted"—that is the word they use—the "worms' fodder."

We eventually worked back to Bridge Creek, and at night the Chinese dinner took place in the local hotel. It was not an elaborate affair at all—just an ordinary public-house dinner, with no special features. Five Chinese merchants dined with the party, the principal, Ah Foo, an aldermanic man, with a fat, puffed face, beaming like a stage sun, and withal thoroughly good-tempered. The attempts to eat with knife and fork were not brilliantly successful, and such a fumbling, and a tinkling, and a clatter as they made were something to be witnessed. By-and-bye the wine came on, and Ah Foo rose to his legs to make a speech, introducing it by a comprehensive flourish of his glass above his head—"Missa genuelmen, we welly glad a see him you come here. We want um nish one. 'Spose livee Queenslan', Wictolea, Sydney, him Chinamen get him plenty gold; sposing no gold him all ight him plantation, savee, allee same money, velly good, hay? We wantum allee same."

The Minister pondered deeply at the end of this oration. It was affecting. It required study. All thought so. To gain time Mr. Parsons proposed the health of the Queen; and all honoured it. Then we prevailed upon Ah Foo to rise and shake his glass about and say, "Missa Palsons" (the Chinese can't pronounce the R, you remember). Before Ah Foo committed himself, however, he whispered me interrogatively, "Him welly good fella." Childlike and bland as ever, you observe! Then there was an awkward pause, but the Minister adroitly proposed the health of Ah Foo and the other hosts, and the honoured rose with those who honoured them and flourished glasses and hip-hip-hurraed to their own glory, just as heartily as their European glorifiers. Then we sat down again, and to save awkwardness, Ah Foo was asked politely by a friend, "Now, what do you mean?" But meantime the Minister had risen and commanded the profound attention of the Celestials, who, by-the-bye, were carefully got up in European costume—ill-assorted and ill-fitting, it must be confessed. They stared at the honourable gentleman as though he combined the sageness—apocryphal and other—attributed to Confucius and half-a-dozen Chinese emperors.

Quoth Mr. Parsons,—"I am very much obliged to you indeed, Ah Foo and gentlemen, for inviting us to dine with you this evening. I feel that it is an act of great courtesy on your part, and it has afforded me and my friends the greatest pleasure to accept your hospitality. ("Yah! yah! all yite." It was Ah Foo's interjection.) You are here for the time being in this land, and under the laws of this country. You are contributing towards the cost of its Government, and in your several positions we wish you every prosperity. When we came to Bridge Creek the other day you were good enough to meet us with a very marked expression of your welcome. We never heard such a firing-off of crackers in our lives before. (Here Ah Foo's mouth began to expand alarmingly.) We were glad to see it. We therefore beg to thank you for that act, which I accept as meaning that you are glad to see someone connected with the Government, and that you wish to keep the laws of the country in which you live." (Here Ah Foo's benignity became intolerable. I uneasily shifted a few inches away till the first paroxysm of his appreciative demonstration had subsided, and his mouth had contracted somewhat.) Then he turned to me and asked, "I spose him talkee welly good jush now? What him mean? You savee him?"

Well this was not encouraging. I told him that the burden of the address was: "You welly good fellow; me likum you," and he said in effect that that was perfectly correct. Then he was called on to make a speech, and with prodigious gestures, and flourishing of glass—that glass was never at rest—he began:—"My countleeman likes fahm (farm), nish countlee all ee same Englishman; takes up land, glow lice (rice, of course!) savee fahm, hey? nish one new countlee. Chinee notting do. Must findum somethin' do. Him wantum Government givee land grow lice, allee same Englishman. How muchee money, Missa Palsons', sir, you chalgee Chinee piecee land?"

The Minister reserved his defence, as he had not—not being accustomed to pigeon English—the slightest idea what Ah Foo meant, or what the allegation was. Then Ah Sam, our Chinese boy, was called to interpret. He explained the first oration, which amounted to—"If a Chinaman wants to take up land for plantations, can he do so—(he needs employment during the dry season when he cannot wash for gold)—and if he does do so, what will he have to pay per acre?" "The Chinamen want an Englishman to prospect for them," as our host said, was the matter with them when we came down, and as I wrote before. Then Mr. Parsons explained the 7s. 6d. an acre clauses, and the Chinamen grinned with satisfaction, and Ah Foo, chuckling, said to me, "Allee yight; me tink ten tousan' Chinee long'a Tellitoly two t'lee year." And others, by the way, have said the same. "We make nish place allee same Singapo'," one observed. Significant, that. They are all going to start plantations.

On went the amusing dialogue. The Chinese wanted an hospital at Palmerston, and the Minister suggested that they should subscribe half its cost. They said they would. They wanted the gold duty off, and Mr. Parsons made no promise; but cleverly introduced the subject of the miners' rights, and told them they would have to pay for them. They promised to do so, when it was suggested that they could pay the fee quarterly. They told me afterwards that the reason why they had not paid hitherto to any extent was that some of them coming in November had taken up the rights, and then more money was demanded from them in December; and they thought they were being imposed on. Yearly rights, dating from day of issue, are the only remedies for the wrong.

And so ended our Chinese banquet, of the stately ceremonious ludicrousness of which I can give but a very slight notion. The English language isn't capable of conveying to the reader a full idea of the guttural intonations of the Celestial throat. But was ever colonial Minister banquetted by Chinamen before? From Bridge Creek we journeyed to the Adelaide River, and paid a visit to a locality where a coffee plantation is being started, under the direction of a gentleman who has has had experience as a planter in Ceylon. The beds have all been prepared for the reception of Liberian coffee; they fear the Arabian will not succeed, and the seeds will probably arrive by the next Hongkong steamer. Arrangements are being made for a supply of Tamil labourers, who get 8d. a day there, and who would, he believes, go to the Northern Territory for 2s. a week more. Mr. J. Mackinnon assured me that he would have no difficulty in getting 500 or 1000 men at that rate, and he speaks in the highest terms of the Tamils as workmen. At present six Chinese at £1 a week, and the privilege of free cartage of rations, are employed on the plantation, and the manager characterises them as lazy and impertinent. The Chinese carpenter gets £3 10s. a week. The intention is to put 500 acres under coffee next year if possible and also to plant cocoa, the indiarubber tree, and maize, amongst other things. Three years hence, Mr. Mackinnon thinks, there will be 500 men employed on the plantation.

On this company's land we saw a remarkable spring. We first saw a cool and limpid spring, like a sheet of glass, so beautifully transparent. Looking some feet to its bed, you see a light displacement of its white-sand crust in about a dozen places; through these the water bubbles brightly up, and the spring is never less or more than it was when we saw it. It is a truly beautiful place; and the estate is a magnificent one.

The arrival at Southport marked the close of 300 miles travel on horses, and such horses. It is only justice to the party to say that, from the time when Mr. Bright returned, they all went through the inconveniences, the slight dangers, and the many discomforts of the trip with more energy than one would expect, opposing to obstacles a cheerful good nature which won the ready assistance of the residents wherever they went. Especially is this the case with regard to the Minister, who was ever to the fore, and in season and out of season interviewed sundry bores and far more numerous intelligent imparters of information. Deputations were received at all hours almost, and travel undertaken early and continued late. The warm welcomings of the people everywhere must not pass unacknowledged. The fact that all the important mining country has been traversed, and information collected respecting every point of interest within them, is greatly due to the willing assistance of the residents. It seemed as though the wet season had been partially suspended to facilitate the progress of the party, for such fine weather at such a time was never known here before, it seems. And so it is not too much to say that the trip through the mining districts has thoroughly accomplished what it was intended to do.

In closing this part of the narrative of the trip, I can only repeat generally that the country abounds in minerals, the extent of which has to be proved by trial which has never yet been applied, or where slightly used with results perfectly satisfactory; that a comparatively small proportion only is fit for cultivation, and that almost all of it is good for grazing. There are many suggestions which will be made when this record shall have concluded. In the meantime, I may give as the result of very careful enquiries the opinion that in the whole of the mining district, there are, including storekeepers and Government officers, scarcely 250 Europeans. The Chinese I estimate at 2200. There is great difficulty in arriving at an absolutely exact computation of their numerical strength, because they are scattered over so large an area; but I interviewed the leading Chinese merchants and gold-buyers in every place I came to, and they gave me as approximately accurate the total I have given—a total verified by my own observation. I cannot too strongly impress upon the reader the fact that there has as a matter of fact been positively no sustained systematic attempt to develop any part of the mineral country. There are all over the territory only nine batteries, all more or less defective. I have seen all of them, and at the time of my visit only three were working, or had been for some time. It is not too much to say that eight-ninths of these crushers lose at least one-third of the gold, and that fact should be remembered in a computation of the yield the stone they treat returns.

The main drawbacks to the prosperity of the mining industry will have a reference hereafter. At present I will only incidentally refer to the operation of the swindles—that is their name up here—of some years ago. To them primarily is traceable the ill-savour of mining enterprise here ever since. In several cases companies were formed with fluctuating share-lists, which did no work at all. Land was pegged out anywhere, leases were applied for, and the venture sold when not a single prospect had been taken. A well-known and "straight" mining manager in one of the principal centres here assures me that some years ago he received no fewer than four telegrams in one day from brokers in Adelaide to this effect, "Peg out claim anywhere; we'll float it." What but a crash could come of this? A crash did come, and I direct attention to the facts now, that a repetition of anything so disgraceful and so utterly inimical to the best interests of our grand northern estate may be avoided. I can see—any enquiring visitor can see—that the dullness, the apathy in the territory, and the disgust outside respecting the territory, were all born of this floating and bursting of bubbles in the days gone by. For legitimate enterprises and for well-directed speculation there is no better field than the Northern Territory presents; and granted a railway I warrant that our reviving white elephant will soon develop into one of the most useful animals any colony could wish to be blessed with.

GEOLOGY OF THE DIAMOND.—To the February number of the American Journal of Science, Mr. O. A. Derby contributes an interesting paper on this subject, giving the results of his personal researches in Brazil. It is generally said that the Brazilian diamond has its matrix in itacolumite, which is a granular quartzose rock, sometimes flexible. But Mr. Derby shows that under the name of itacolumite rocks, two distinct geological series have hitherto been confounded. The diamond-bearing rock of the famous locality of Grao Mogal probably belongs to the newer of the two series; but the gems have not been formed in these rocks, and occur there only as derivative bodies like the associated pebbles. At Sao Joao da Chapada the diamond is worked in a deposit of clay; and its original matrix appears to be a vein of quartz accompanying a rock of unknown nature, but containing iron and crystals of tourmaline, traversing a series of schists and itacolumite. Mr. Derby concludes that the original diamond formation in Brazil is probably of Cambrian age.

OLD AND NEW SYDNEY.

I.—A GLIMPSE OF THE PAST.

The extraordinary strides which have been made by Sydney and suburbs within recent years—and particularly within the last decade—are, fairly considering the circumstances, almost without a parallel in the history of colonization, and the rate of progress which has been achieved rivals even the marvellous growth of the western cities of America. For in the case of those and other cities there was either the irresistible attraction of gold, or the existence of a system of wholesale immigration to flood the country with population; but in the case of Sydney, the remarkable feature of its advancement is that it has been at once rapid and gradual, and independent of any abnormal attraction, or the wholesale introduction of assisted immigrants. Under the influence of this advent of evidently solid prosperity, Sydney has undergone, and is still undergoing, such a transformation that the contrast between the old city and the new is remarkable, and can hardly fail to be interesting.

For the sake of such a contrast let us take a glimpse of the period, say, when Sydney first became a city, and rejoiced in the blessings of possessing a mayor, a town clerk, a body of aldermen, and all the attendant paraphernalia of civic rule. It was in 1843 that Sydney was thus incorporated, and from the official statistics of the Municipal Council for that year we learn that the amount raised by assessment on the inhabitants of the city of Sydney, on account of the city fund, was £11,966; last year it was £105,627; the rents and dues from the markets then amounted to £2148, now they amount to £11,668. The proceeds of the sale of water then amounted to £1196, now the water supplied to houses, and by contract, yields an annual revenue of nearly £69,000. The salaries and contingencies then reached a total of £5168; now they have reached the respectable total of £26,400. In making this comparison we have excluded the police fund, as item which does not now appear in the council's accounts. According to the statistics for 1843, the City Council incurred an expenditure in that year of £4400 for payment of "police magistrates, clerks, and police force for the city of Sydney," and to meet this a rate of £5008 was raised by assessment. An interesting item in these accounts is "Amount awarded as prize for plans for Town Hall, £80." That is nearly 40 years ago, and we have not got a Town Hall yet.

Of those who know Sydney as it now is, very, very few know what it looked like 40 years ago, when its population was not much greater than that of Woolloomooloo, and its revenue hardly equal to that of Balmain. Scanning a number of descriptions of the young city of those days, one cannot fail to be struck with the extraordinary contrast between the present and the not very remote past. J. C. Byrne, author of "Twelve Years' Wanderings in the British Colonies," devotes a gossipy chapter to Sydney, in the course of which he says:—

> "This (the north) was the portion of the town first built; and not a few of its houses are now falling into dilapidation, on account of its having become the St. Giles' of the town, and forming the resort of all the bad characters and crimps that an extensive convict and sea-faring population must necessarily generate. The streets and lanes, in this vicinity, are in many parts impassable for wheeled vehicles, and nearly so for the accommodation of foot passengers. Rows of steps have been cut into the solid rock which forms the surface of some of the streets, and the foundation of all the buildings; these are, in general, erected of the soft, sandy, white stone, found on the spot, and which soon acquires consistency when exposed to the weather. George-street, which traverses Sydney from end to end, and forms its main artery, is not only the chief place of business, but as it extends south, it is off this street, at right angles, that most of the principal thoroughfares run, the remaining streets being parallel to it. Here are to be found the barracks, occupying the most central and best situation for business in the entire place; it contains very many acres, and is nearly a level space. Many of the houses in Sydney are beautiful and extensive buildings, some of white native stone, and would reflect credit on any capital in Europe. At the corner of George-street and Charlotte-place, stands an auction mart, unequalled in London; it was built some years ago, and afterwards occupied by Mr. Samuel Lyons, an auctioneer. An idea may be formed of this auction mart by the fact, that it was let at the rate of £1560 per annum."

Speaking of Woolloomooloo and Darlinghurst, which then practically formed the limit of the eastern suburbs—for Paddington, Woollahra, and Waverley were then only in their infancy, and were not proclaimed municipalities until 20 years later, Mr. Byrne says:—

> "Woolloomooloo, a high sandy hill overlooking the waters of the estuary, at a short distance to the eastward of the town, is covered with whole streets of beautiful villas and superb mansions, around which the orange, the vine, and large hedges of geraniums and myrtle, flourish and shed their fragrance. The houses are, almost without exception, separate, and stand in gardens or pleasure grounds; they are painted white to reflect the rays of the sun, but this sameness is relieved by the universal green venetian blinds and large shady verandahs. The world may be travelled over, but in none of its towns or cities would there be found the same proportion of public houses and dram shops as there is to be seen in Sydney. You cannot traverse the streets in any direction for 50 yards without meeting with one; at every corner of a thoroughfare you may be almost sure to find one, for they occupy the best situations for business in every part. The rents paid in some instances by their tenants are really almost beyond comprehension; three, four, or five hundred per annum, is not at all unusual, and yet the persons who carry on business, subject to these rents, mostly prosper and accumulate wealth."

The houses in Woolloomooloo, which, "almost without exception," were separate and stood "in gardens and pleasure grounds," would be rare exceptions now-a-days. Sydney is still a thirsty community, and in view of the fact that the drink traffic of the world is greater than ever it was, notwithstanding the great work carried on from year to year by temperance reformers, a change in this "thirstiness" can hardly be anticipated. But a wonderful alteration in the regulations under which the liquor trade is carried on has been effected in our midst in recent years, and it is a fair boast that in no city of the British dominions of similar magnitude is there a better conducted class of hotels and taverns, taken as a whole, than in Sydney. One of our historians, writing of 40 or 50 years ago, said:—"Drunkenness is, indeed, the great bane of New South Wales with men and women alike. Drink, drink, drink seems to be the universal motto, and the quantity that is consumed is incredible; from early morning to dark night it is the same—Bacchus being constantly sacrificed to." No faithful historian could write that of the present day, notwithstanding the number of votaries which Bacchus has and probably always will have; and the well ordered community we now possess is an evidence of the social as well as material progress that has been effected. It is, however, with the latter phase of advancement that we have to deal mainly, and in this connection we may again quote from Mr. Byrne's book:—

> "For a town of so recent a date as Sydney, it contains several convenient public edifices. As may be expected, from the nature of the original population, the principal of these are convict barracks or gaols. The new gaol at Woolloomooloo is a building of immense extent. Sufficient accommodation exists here for 3000 prisoners, and the number of solitary cells is very considerable. The Court house, which stands close to the gaol wall, and some half-mile from the town boundaries, is a white stone building, of considerable extent, and some architectural beauty; it has not been very long completed. Previously to 1841, both gaol and court-house were within the boundaries of the city, but some distance apart. The gaol then stood in the narrowest part of George-street, which it nearly blocked up; and from which, as you passed along, you could see the bodies of criminals, hanging from the gallows erected within the walls, not unfrequently in considerable numbers. The old gaol is now knocked down, and the street improved by the alteration. Hyde Park Barracks, and the House of Correction, both forming convict establishments, are extensive and airy brick buildings; as is also the general hospital, principally for convicts, which, on account of its situation and accommodation, will no doubt prove of great advantage to the inhabitants generally, when the gradual decrease of convicts shall have placed it more fully at the disposal of the free. The public market is such as is seldom to be found in large towns in England. Composed of four sheds of great length and considerable breadth, it offers accommodation to meet the wants of a population twice as extensive as that of Sydney."

To-day a market twice the size of the ancient "four sheds" would not properly meet the wants of half the population of Sydney. Mr. Byrne has something to say of the Central Police Court, with its "three paid police magistrates, assisted by many Justices of the Peace;" of the Convict Court, where "sentences as far as two years' working in irons are passed without the intervention of any other form than the will of two magistrates;" of the Free Court, where, "fine, or confinement in the stocks—which are in a street next the police office—is inflicted;" and of the Sydney Exchange, the foundation stone of which was laid in 1840, but the erection of which, we are told, had progressed but slowly, and it was feared that many years would elapse before it would be completed.

Lieutenant-Colonel Mundy, who will be well remembered by many old colonists, in his work entitled "Our Antipodes," speaks of Hyde Park as "merely a fenced common, without a tree or a blade of grass;" and the Hyde Park Barracks as a convict depot. He gives a graphic account of his residential experiences of Sydney:—

> "House rent in Sydney is very high, and vacant houses are very scarce. The first I took consisted of seven small rooms, without stable, courtyard, pump, kitchen range, or even bells to the rooms; rent, £100 per annum for the bare walls. It was situated in the heart of the town, or at least in its pericardium. The street contained, I think, upwards of 300 houses; and I was compelled to be particular in giving my address —— street North, because its other extremity tapered off into impropriety. I had fallen by accident into the legal quarter of the city; indeed my house had been built expressly to form two sets of chambers for gentlemen of the long robe. The door-posts of nearly all my neighbours were scored with the names of barristers, attorneys, solicitors, notaries-public, and other limbs of the law, who, albeit rivals in the trade, contrive to play into each other's hands to the detriment of the public pocket. My street abutted upon the Supreme Court, and the prospect from my windows was anything but agreeable; for they looked upon the backs of a cluster of St. Giles-like tenements, across a piece of waste ground, unbuilt on because litigated, which seemed to be the central depot for all the nuisances of the arrondissement,—where all sorts of rubbish might be shot, or at least was shot, from a load of soot to a proscribed cat or the decimated fraction of a litter of puppies. The lighting, and still more, the paving of the Sydney streets, are a disgrace to the city and its corporation, as well as to the people who tolerate the ill-performed duties of the latter well-paid body. The trottoirs are full (and were to the last day of my residence in New South Wales) of the most ingenious traps, dangerous to the limbs, if not to the lives of the passengers. The sewerage of the town is also shamefully bad, though no city possesses a site more favourable for that essential. Most of the drains are on the surface, and during the long periods of drought the accumulation of filth becomes beyond measure disgusting. At length comes the expected 'Brickfielder,' drifting the pulverized abominations into every pore of the human frame, and every crevice of the houses. It is closely followed by a flood of rain, which sets all the gutters in motion, and, fortunately for the citizens, carries away down to the sea in its torrents the thousand specimens of decomposed matter, which have been left to rot in the streets. The thoroughfares are infested by an innumerable host of apparently ownerless dogs—innumerable in spite of the Dog Act, that has been in force ever since the Government order fulminated against the canine race in 1812."

In these days of Australian tours by celebrated actors, violinists, vocalists, and pianists, when the patrons of theatres and concerts on a single night in a leading colonial city can often be numbered by thousands, the following (written in 1846) reads curiously:—

> "Sydney is not without its public amusements for the stranger as well as the resident. Of the Theatre Royal I may fairly say that, as far as dramatic talent is concerned, it is conducted at the least as well as the generality of provincial houses in England. To be sure, we are compelled to be satisfied all the year round with the efforts of stationary performers; for it must be an eccentric star indeed which would shoot so far out of its orbit as to reach New South Wales."

They were not without larrikins in those days, though they knew them not by that name. Colonel Mundy writes:—

> "There are to be found round the doors of the Sydney theatre a sort of 'loafers,' known as the cabbage-tree mob, a class whom, in the spirit of the ancient tyrant, one might excusably wish had but one nose, in order to make it a bloody one! These are an unruly set of young fellows, native-born generally, who not being able, perhaps, to muster coin enough to enter the house, amuse themselves by molesting those who can afford the luxury. Dressed in a suit of fustian or colonial tweed, and the emblem of their order, the low crowned cabbage-palm hat, the main object of their enmity seems to be the ordinary black headpiece worn by respectable persons, which is ruthlessly knocked over the eyes of the wearer as he passes or enters the theatre."

En passant, our author quotes from the Sydney Herald an advertisement which speaks as eloquently of bygone days as anything that could be mentioned, viz.:—"J. K. Cleave, wholesale and retail butcher, will supply beef and mutton of good quality at 1d. per lb."

Another writer (R. G. Jameson, author of a work on New Zealand, South Australia, and New South Wales) speaks of "the windmills crowning the heights of Woolloomooloo" becoming visible as he advanced up the harbour in 1841; makes a boast of the fact that there were 25,000 tons of shipping in the harbour at one time (the sailing vessels alone in the harbour to-day would make up that total); refers to vessels having "discharged prisoners or emigrants;" speaks of the streets being inundated in the wool season by gentlemen from the interior, from their stations "in the far-off regions of Yass or New England," their "visages overshadowed by the spreading brims of low-crowned hats, and their heels loaded with spurs of a formidable length;" refers to house rent as being "perhaps 80 per cent. dearer than in London," a peculiarity in which there has been little change except in the direction of increasing the per centage; and describes the employment of 300 convicts in the construction of a dam (also answering the purposes of a bridge) over Cook's River, and the remarkable rise in the value of land in that vicinity from 20s. to £5 per acre—land which to-day could not be purchased for less than fifty times that sum per acre.

FIJI.

We are in receipt of files from Fiji to the 12th April:—

At a town's meeting at Levuka, held for the purpose of considering matters connected with the continuation of Supreme Court administration in Levuka, it was decided that the meeting form itself into a committee of the whole for the purpose of arranging a public meeting for the better ventilation of the question.

Mr. C. W. Drury, real estate agent, has negotiated some extensive transfers of property, and amongst others has disposed of two blocks on the Dreketi River, one of 1000 acres and one of 1380 acres. It is said that the lands have been bought with an eye to sugar cultivation in that district.

The Times advocates a relaxation of the vexatious restrictions at present interfering with the legitimate relationship that should exist between the European employer and the native labourer.

The Mago Island Company have made arrangements to extend their operations in Fiji, and with that object have purchased the properties of Messrs. Beelan, M'Evoy, and Borron, on the islands of Cicia and Kanacia. The consideration is said to be over £20,000.

The weather is charming, bright days of warm sunshine being tempered with refreshing south-east trades, while the nights are delightfully cool and pleasant.

The contractors are making good progress with the bank buildings, and there is every prospect that they will be completed early in June.

His Excellency has received a telegram from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, informing him that the emigration agent of this colony in Calcutta has been authorised to forward, if possible, 1200 coolies to this colony.

A special thanksgiving was offered in the Church of the Redeemer for the escape of her Most Gracious Majesty from the attempt lately made upon her life, and the National Anthem was rendered by the choir and congregation at the conclusion of the service.

THE RIVALS OF THE STEAM ENGINE.—The Times reports that the first application of electricity to the driving of tramway cars in England was made on Saturday, March 4, at the works of the North Metropolitan Tramways Company, Leytonstone. The car employed was one which has been the subject of a similar experiment in France. It was fitted with a large number of Faure accumulators ranged under the seats and communicating with a motor underneath, which, in its turn, by means of pinion-wheels, acted upon the wheels of the car. The accumulators having been charged at a dynamo machine in the company's yard, a number of ladies and gentlemen who had been invited to witness the experiment mounted upon the car and had a few runs with it up and down a quarter of a mile of tramway in Union-road, to the amazement of the inhabitants, who, for the first time in their lives, saw a tramcar full of people travelling at the rate of seven or eight miles an hour without any visible motive power. As proving the applicability of electric force to locomotion, the experiment was an undoubted success. The accumulators, which weighed a ton and a-half, exerted, with one charging, a force equal to that of 25 horses for one hour—that is to say, five horses for five hours, and so on. In other words, the car could have run with its full number of passengers for half a day, with an ample allowance for waste of energy. The objection to this system as at present carried out rests on two grounds—first, that the car with its load of accumulators weighs as much as five tons; and, secondly, that the pinion-wheels make a loud grinding noise, such as seriously to incommode the public. Both these defects the promoters hope to be able to remedy by attaching the motor, which is practically a dynamo machine reversed, direct to the axle, thus dispensing with pinion-wheels and reducing friction. The attachment of the motor direct to the axle would necessitate, in the case of tramcars, the use of driving-wheels small enough to make a large number of revolutions per minute with a low rate of progression. In the case of railway trains it would enable a very high rate of speed to be attained—probably 100 miles an hour—with driving-wheels of moderate size. The promoters are sanguine enough to believe that at no distant day they may be able also to introduce electric cabs and omnibuses guided like velocipedes. All vehicles driven by electricity could, of course, with a little additional expenditure of force, be lighted by the same means. It only remains to add, with reference to the electric tramcar, that it can be worked, started, stopped, and reversed, by the moving of a small switch-handle, and that the promoters calculate upon being able to work tramways with electricity at one-half the cost of horse-power.

OUR HOSIERY DEPARTMENT.
EDWARD HORDERN AND SONS.
The difficulty of entering into any description of the numberless kinds and makes of Hosiery is this season greatly enhanced. Such inexhaustible variety, unlimited selection, and multifarious designs I do not think it possible to equal. The perfection to which science and skill has brought the art of weaving in late years, is almost marvellous. It seems incredible that out of hundreds of makes and colourings, no two are alike. If variety is charming, surely who could fail to be pleased with such a choice? This is, and always has been, a special Department in our house, and a reputation of many years' standing has gained us a name far and wide for this particular class of goods.

POSITIVE and ABSOLUTE SALE of that magnificent Estate on the DARLING DOWNS, QUEENSLAND, WESTBROOK, WEDNESDAY, 26th of APRIL, 1882.

In consequence of the retirement of M. SHANAHAN, Esq., Sen., from participation in the affairs of the firm of SHANAHAN and JENNINGS.

WILKINSON, GRAVES, and LAVENDER, Sydney (in conjunction with Messrs. B. D. Morehead and Co., Brisbane, and Messrs. Dal. Campbell and Co., Melbourne), have received instructions from Sir Patrick Jennings and John Shanahan, Esq., to sell by public auction, at the Exchange Rooms, Sydney, on WEDNESDAY, 26th of April, 1882,
THE WESTBROOK ESTATE, QUEENSLAND, comprising a compact Block of 82,900 ACRES of FREEHOLD LAND, being the very cream of the Darling Downs, which have been justly described as the "Garden of Queensland." The soil is of the very richest description for either agricultural or pastoral purposes, being of volcanic character, black, red, and chocolate, whilst the climate is unequalled in salubrity, owing to the altitude of the Darling Downs, which in this locality attain an elevation of about 2000 feet above the level of the sea.

The WHOLE ESTATE is splendidly fenced, and subdivided into 37 paddocks, all of the most substantial and permanent description. It is watered by the Westbrook Creek, Spring Creek, Gowrie Creek, and Oakey Creeks. It is intersected by two main lines of railway, the railway station at Westbrook Crossing being only about 5 miles from the mansion and within a few hours of Brisbane, whilst the railways now in course of construction will bring Westbrook into direct railway communication with Sydney and Melbourne.

The HOMESTEAD is a mansion built of massive bluestone, replete with every possible convenience for the residence of a gentleman's family. The other improvements have been made with sound judgment regardless of cost, and are "perfect."

There are at present about 76,327 sheep of a high class upon the property, also a selected herd of cattle. The horses have been bred from the very best strains of stock procurable of their different sorts, whether for draught or saddle. There are some fallow and other deer, which have been running on the estate for the last 10 years; these will also become the property of the purchaser. It may be mentioned, further, that, in the opinion of one of the most eminent geologists in the colonies, the strata underlying the rich volcanic soil of this part of the Darling Downs are coal-bearing, and coal of prime quality is worked at Allora, a short distance south. It will be seen therefore that the

is justly entitled to the designation it has so long borne of being one of the finest, if not the finest in Australia, and the circumstances of a rich soil, an unrivalled climate, and a central and convenient position and inexhaustible capabilities, combine to render the property in every way a most desirable investment.

THE TERMS WILL BE LIBERAL.

PITT, SON, and BADGERY have received instructions from Messrs. John K. and Ross R. Doyle to sell by auction, at the Exchange, Sydney, on WEDNESDAY, 26th April, at half-past 2 o'clock,
The Morabilla Station,
situate on the Bokhara River, to which it has a frontage of about 11 miles, and comprising the blocks—
Bundabulla East, No. 1
Ditto ditto, No. 2
Morella
Morella Back
of an estimated area of 163,000 acres.
Together with about 50,000 high-class sheep, of the following ages and sexes:—
9500 ewes, 1 year
9500 ditto, 2, 3, and 4 years
5000 ditto, full-mouth
500 ditto, studs, mixed ages
500 ewes, weaners
25,000
16,500 wethers, 1 year
7,670 ditto, 2, 3, and 4 years
500 ditto, weaners
320 rams
10 ditto, studs
25,000
50,000

The run, which is situate about 30 miles north of Brewarrina, joins Milroy, Quantambone, and Bundabulla, and is acknowledged to be quite equal to anything in the district. The owner from long experience estimates its capabilities at quite 60,000 sheep.
It is amply watered by its frontage to the Bokhara River, and also by seven splendid tanks.
It is subdivided into 11 large and 5 small paddocks, the fencing being first-class, the greater portion having been but lately erected.
There is also a comfortable homestead, with all the necessary outbuildings, yards, plant, &c., for the efficient working of the property.
The sheep have always been carefully culled, and the average for several years past has been over 3lb. of scoured wool.
The lambs shorn last year gave 1lb. 10oz. of scoured wool, and a portion clipped in the grease gave 3lb. 4oz.
In submitting this valuable property for public competition, the auctioneers would strongly advise buyers on the look-out for a good safe investment to go and inspect. The country, improvements, and stock are all undeniably good, and a return of at least £15,000 may be looked for within a few months of purchasing.
Full particulars as to terms, &c., and letters to inspect, may be obtained on application to the agents.
PITT, SON, and BADGERY, Sydney.

BINNEGUY STATION.
GWYDIR DISTRICT.
2500 CATTLE.
4000 ACRES LAND.

PITT, SON, and BADGERY have received instructions from D. Eaton, Esq., to sell by auction, at the Exchange, Sydney, on FRIDAY, the 28th April, at half-past 2 o'clock,
The above well-known fattening property.
Binneguy is situated on the Big River, about 20 miles from Moree, joining Messrs. M'Donald and Co.'s Mungi Bungi.
The Water Supply has never been known to fail, and the country is admirably adapted for either cattle or sheep.
The Run is well improved, and the best portions of it have been secured by some 4000 acres of freehold and conditional purchased land.
The Cattle are a quiet well-bred lot, and number about 2500 head.
The Horses, which number about 120 head, are an especially good lot, the stud of draft mares being quite equal to anything in New South Wales.
The auctioneers can recommend this property as an excellent investment to a small capitalist, and would invite inspection prior to sale.
Full particulars may be obtained on application to the agents,
PITT, SON, and BADGERY, Sydney.

BUNABA and CURRAGUNDI STATIONS, GWYDIR DISTRICT.

PITT, SON, and BADGERY have received instructions from John Town, Esq., to sell by auction, at the Exchange, Sydney, on FRIDAY, the 28th of April, at half-past 2 o'clock,
The Bunaba and Curragundi Stations, situate between Moree and Mungindi, and comprising the blocks of runs—Bunaba North, A and B; Bunaba South, A and B; Tarrawa or Dindena, Mungi Waterhole, Big Lather West, Warren North, and Warren South, of an estimated area of 180,000 acres, together with about 9000 cattle and 3000 acres purchased land.
These stations, which adjoin Bucknell's Yarrawa, Doyle's Caloona, Robertson and Co.'s Midkin, Gilchrist, Watt, and Co.'s Goonal, and others, were taken up by the present owner upwards of 35 years ago, when nearly the whole country was open, and they comprise an area of as fine sheep country as is to be found in New South Wales. The northern portion, known as Bunaba, is all high blue grass plain country, beautifully timbered with myall, rosewood, and coolibar, and abundance of large and small saltbush. The southern portion, known as Curragundi, is lower country, and a large area of it is irrigated yearly by the overflow of the Big River. Vegetation on this is of the rankest description, and it is simply impossible to give an estimate of its carrying capabilities. A large extent of country has hitherto been unavailable, owing to no provision having been made for water, and from the fact that the runs have been stocked with cattle only, the country may almost be looked upon as being in its virgin state, and without inspection no conception can be formed of the wondrous growth of grass and herbage.
The runs have frontages of about 10 miles to the Boomi River, which is permanent, 11 miles to each side of the Gill Gill Creek, 11 miles to Gingham Watercourse, and 18 miles to Big Lather Watercourse, which could be made permanent by artificial means. All the best water and facilities for making same have been judiciously secured by land purchases, and by a liberal expenditure of money in the erection of dams the carrying capabilities would be immensely increased.
The runs are all fenced, and subdivided into three paddocks, by substantial wire fencing, a portion of which is sheep proof; there is a comfortable homestead, nice garden, with water laid on, also all necessary outbuildings, yards, paddocks, &c.
The cattle have an excellent reputation, and are well liked by the trade, and, as there are a large number of marketable bullocks fat and fattening, a good return may be looked for during the ensuing year.
In submitting these valuable properties for bona fide sale, the agents would strongly advise capitalists on the lookout for first-class sheep country to go and inspect, for the runs might readily be improved and stocked with sheep and the cattle fattened off.
Particulars as to terms, &c., may be had on application to the agents,
PITT, SON, and BADGERY.

FOR ABSOLUTE SALE.
GRAVESEND STATION, Gwydir District.

PITT, SON, and BADGERY have received instructions from Messrs. J. M'Donald and Co. (in consequence of the retirement of one of the partners) to sell by auction, at the Exchange, Sydney, on FRIDAY, the 28th of April, at half-past 2 o'clock,
The Yaggaba or Gravesend Station, situated on the Gwydir or Big River, adjoining Binneguy, and comprising an area of 75,000 acres, together with about 4000 acres purchased land and 4000 very superior cattle.
The station has a frontage of about 12 miles to the Big River, and there are besides three dams and two tanks out back. The river frontage is well secured, the purchased land comprising all the best of it. The country is all thoroughly sound, fattening, and healthy, and when held by the late proprietor, and used for fattening purposes, the stock always commanded the highest prices ruling in the Sydney market.
The improvements are all good and substantial. Upwards of 40 miles of wire and post and rail fencing have been erected, making 4 large and 3 small paddocks. There is a good house and garden, stable, hay shed, cultivation paddock, &c.; in fact, everything requisite for the proper and economical working of the property.
The Cattle are an exceedingly choice, well-bred herd; great attention has been paid to them of late years, and no expense has been spared in obtaining the best of bulls. There are also about 20 stock horses.
In submitting this valuable property to public competition, the agents would desire to point out the very exceptionable advantages it possesses. The country is good, the stock ditto, it is well improved, and well watered, so that the purchaser will find all the comforts of a home, combined with a lucrative investment.
Terms, exceedingly liberal.
Any further information may be had on application to the agents,
PITT, SON, and BADGERY, Sydney.

BALONNE RIVER.
MARANOA DISTRICT, QUEENSLAND.
THE GLENEARN STATION, of about 556 SQUARE MILES, with 4900 CATTLE.

MORT and CO. have received instructions from Messrs. JACOB and WILLIAM LOW, to sell by public auction, at their Wool Warehouses, Circular Quay, Sydney, about the end of MAY, 1882,
THE GLENEARN STATION, consisting of the following blocks in the Maranoa District, viz.:—

|---|---|
| Donga | Moongoolan |
| Algiers | Wallala |
| Tripoli | Moallit |
| Brambanno East | Essex |
| Tripoli Back Run East | Merroombill |
| Tripoli Back Run | South Mooroodilla |
| Glen Lyon | Glenearn Back Run |
| Kaitarrah | Noona |
| Kourraninbal | Noona South, |

comprising an area of about 556 SQUARE MILES of sound SHEEP and CATTLE COUNTRY, consisting of BOX AND IRONBARK RIDGES AND FLATS, MYALL DOWNS AND PLAINS, THICKLY GRASSED WITH BLUE AND MITCHELL GRASSES, &c., AND A GOOD SUPPLY OF SALTBUSH. THE RUN IS WELL AND PERMANENTLY WATERED, by a FRONTAGE of 15 MILES TO THE BALONNE RIVER and the DONGA CREEK, which runs through the run for 35 miles. Also permanently watered by the [illegible] and Gydyah Creeks, and various other creeks and back waterholes that stand a long time, and nearly the whole of the country can be used for sheep in the dryest and hottest season.
With GLENEARN will be sold 4900, MORE or LESS, WELL-BRED CATTLE, which have been carefully culled; and the only bulls used in the herd for the last nine years have been those purchased from the A. A. COMPANY, at a cost of from 50 to 60 GUINEAS EACH, and a few from Dr. JENKINS' HERD.
Also, about 60 HORSES.
The IMPROVEMENTS on the head station are manager's house, store, kitchen, WOOLSHED, men's huts, milking yard and a large herding yard; also, two horse paddocks of 640 and 220 acres each. On the DONGA there is also overseer's house, store, milking yard, 100-acre horse paddock, and substantial stockyard, convenient and suitable for working any number of cattle. There are also on the run various large herding yards, huts, and sheep yards to accommodate 60,000 SHEEP. About 320 SQUARE MILES of the country is enclosed by a DOG-LEG and WIRE FENCE, with the exception of the frontage to the river, at most times a natural boundary, and about seven or eight miles now in course of completion.
The carrying capabilities of the run are 14,000 cattle, or an equivalent of sheep, and it is situated 80 miles from Roma, 80 miles from Yeulbah, and 150 miles from Dalby.
Particular attention is directed to the large area of country in the run and to the comparatively few cattle offered with it. The country has been held by the Messrs. Low for [illegible] years, and stocked continuously with sheep.
Cobb and Co.'s mail coaches pass through the run twice a week from Yeulbah to St. George.
Plan can be seen and further information obtained from
MORT and CO.,

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from the TRUSTEES OF THE UNDERWOOD ESTATE, to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, on MONDAY, 8th MAY,

at 11 o'clock,

FLEMINGTON ESTATE,
170 ACRES,
surrounding the proposed new Flemington Railway Station, NEAR HOMEBUSH and the Corporation Sale Yards now in course of completion, occupying one of the most elevated positions on the Parramatta line between Sydney and Granville.
This valuable estate has been carefully subdivided by Mr. Surveyor Binsted into BUILDING SITES,
fronting the Parramatta and other wide roads, each having about 50 feet frontage with depths varying from 140 feet to 285 feet.

☞ FLEMINGTON is the last of the
and, as usual in all sales under the direction of the trustees, the whole must be absolutely cleared on the sale day on the liberal terms announced.
The Land is very favourably situated for building purposes, and being intersected by the railway into about equal portions, every site is within easy distance of the station, and from the nature of the elevated, gently undulating formation, commands extensive varied views of the surrounding scenery, bounded by the Parramatta River and the beautiful Pennant Hills; indeed, no brighter or more charming position for suburban residences will be found in this justly favourite locality.
The roads have all been cleared, and each site is clearly defined and marked with numbered pegs, so that no difficulty will be found by intending purchasers in making their selections. And as option will be given at the sale to take consecutive lots, there will be no limit to the area they may desire to secure either for a residence site, or for speculative purposes.

N.B.—A portion of the estate has been resumed by the Government for the new Railway Station and other Government buildings.

A compact BLOCK OF COUNTRY in N. T., 1050 miles, situated about 30 miles from the Finke River and about 45 miles in direct line S. W. of Chambers's Pillar, adjoining Messrs. Grant and Stokes's stocked runs on the Finke. The country is watered by several limestone springs, one of which is the starting point of the run. These springs have never been known to fail in the longest drought. A chain of large clay pans, some of them two and three miles in circumference, runs through the block, carrying water for a considerable time after ordinary summer rain. The grazing capabilities of the run have been pronounced by competent judges to be as good as anything in the district, consisting of low bald hills and undulating country, thickly covered with grass and herbage, all the flats well clothed with cotton and saltbush; also large grassy mulga flats, providing shelter for stock, and ample supply of timber for fencing and building purposes. The Friendly spring, the starting point of the block, has been slightly opened, and the supply of water increased with every stroke of the pick in the limestone stock.
